Revive Move to Transfer City Funds for Relief

GROCERS SEEK COURT OKAY TO FREE $50,000

Sinking Fund Money Would Be Used to Pay Off $35,000 Owed for Food Bills.

LEVIES NEED MAJORITY

Assistant Prosecutor Clears Up Vote Question on City, Township Relief Issues.

Mansfield grocers today had revived a pigeon-holed move to obtain cash for relief purposes while at the same time an opinion from the county prosecutor's office held that only a majority vote will be needed for passage of two relief levies on the Aug. 9 ballot.

It was learned today that independent grocers in Mansfield were considering concerted action to gain approval from Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston of a petition filed three months ago by the city, seeking the 'transfer of $50,000 from the sinking fund to the poor relief fund

Seeks Transfer of Balance.

The petition asks that the unencumbered balance in the fund be turned over for relief purposes.

The independent grocers who are carrying 80 per cent of the $35,000 in bills now owed by the city for food under an agreement made with city officials earlier in the year, plan to ask Judge Huston to act favorably on the city's petition.

The judge, who has had the request under advisement, has indicated that a legal technicality makes the procedure illegal. City officials said the state tax commission had informed them that the funds could be transferred in the case of such an emergency if the court gave its approval.

Levies Require Majority Vote.

In the meantime Harold T. Lutz, assistant county prosecutor, said that the two relief levies—a two-mill assessment in Mansfield and a one-mill assessment in Madison township—needed only a majority vote at the primary for passage.

He explained that both the city and Madison township had filed their requests under the section of the state code covering emergency levies outside the 10-mill limitation for current operating expenses.

Lutz said that when the county tax commission had ascertained that taxes were not enough to provide additional revenues for relief within the budget, that the sub-divisions were allowed to seek the levy as an emergency.

If the levies are approved by the voters Aug. 9, the two-mill assessment in Mansfield, under the revised property valuation figures, would raise $104,000 annually during 1939 and 1940 while the township would get $57,000 annually from a one-mill levy.

Lester Glad He Won Last Year's Derby

'37 Champ Watches Soap Box Trials, Looks for Speedy Contest.

Take it from Lester Griebling, 1937 city champion, The News-Journal Soap Box Derby on Sturges hill a week from today will be a fast race.

Griebling, who represented Mansfield in the All-American finals in Akron last year, is not eligible to defend his title, but he saw the trials and decided it is probably just as well, because "the boys are certainly making fast time."

* * *

About 30 of the 73 cars entered participated in the trials which attracted a crowd of over 300.

Derby Director Donald D. Cram of the Y. M. C. A. said no attempt was made to time the trials, but all bettered a speed of 30 miles per hour.

Representatives of the Toledo Scale company of Toledo "weighed in" drivers and cars.

Only one was overweight. That was Jack Smith, 12, of Route 5, whose car was four pounds over the limit of 250 pounds. He expects no trouble shaving the extra poundage off.

* * *

Robert Miller, 12, of 124 West Second street, watched the trials from the sidelines. He smashed his car in a practice run on his street yesterday morning, but he expects to have the damage repaired in time for the finals next Wednesday.

Cram was assisted at the trials by Atty. Harold Burns, who served as starter last year; R. L. Kreis, district manager of the Chevrolet company, which, with the Y. M. C. A., is a co-sponsor of the Mansfield Derby, and E. L. Ayres of the Toledo Scale company.

'DOOMED,' DIES

Radium Poison Victim 10th Woman Meeting Death.

OTTAWA, Ill.—(UP)—Radium poisoning today caused the death of Mrs. Catherine Donohue, 35, one of the 15 "doomed women of Ottawa." She was the 10th to die.

Death came to the shrunken mother of two children less than five months after a surgeon predicted she had only a few months to live. She had heard the surgeon, Dr. Walter Dalitsch of the University of Illinois, predict her doom at a hearing here last Feb. 10 before the Illinois industrial commission.

"We worked with fine brushes which were dipped into a preparation of radioactive salts, a by-product of radium," she had testified. "To give the brushes a fine point we wet them with our tongues and lips."

It was in this way, she said, that the poison entered her system.

After Eleven Hours on Ledge—He Jumped

Ignoring pleas of thousands gathered in the street below, John Ward, 26, threatened for 11 hours yesterday to leap from his perch on the 17th floor of a Fifth avenue hotel in New York and finally did. His warning "Don't come near me or I'll jump," kept police and firemen from using force to move him to safety. Saying "I've made up my mind," Ward plunged to the street shortly after 10 p. m. yesterday. He is shown on the hotel ledge in the above photo taken while persons in the room at his left tried to persuade him to return to his room.

RETAIL SALES DRIVE OUTLINED

Merchants Name Committee to Plan Their Part in 'Sales Mean Jobs' Crusade.

Meeting this morning, Mansfield retail merchants outlined the part they will play in the "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign which opens Aug 2.

They appointed a committee to develop a series of special sales events which will serve a dual purpose — interest the public in buying and help their sales forces sell.

The committee on whose shoulders this task will fall is made up of L. J. Washburn, Merle Pecht, Orlo Smith, R. M. Calene. C. O. Russell, W. O. Loomis, G. W. O'Connor, Charles Siegenthaler and Charles H. Clauser.

Tomorrow representatives of industrial, wholesale, service, building supply, automobile and automobile supply and accessory concerns, including filling stations, will meet at the Chamber of Commerce to formulate similar plans for their businesses.

Saturday, workmen will start decorating the business section and stores with signs and pennants bearing the slogan "Sales Mean Jobs", and Monday buttons bearing the same slogan will be given out to those participating in the campaign.

PROBE DEATH OF ASHLANDER, 78

Three Counties Take Hand in Investigation, Asked by Prosecutor Marriott.

Investigation by authorities of three counties into the death of Charles H. Fuller, 78, colored, Ashland, was under way today, after Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott of Richland county said the aged man "might have been fatally hurt in a fight July 4 in Mansfield."

Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling of Ashland county today ordered an autopsy of the body, which was buried July 7 at Kenton. The autopsy was to be performed this afternoon at Kenton to determine if Fuller suffered a skull fracture in the fight here, the day before he was found dead in his room at Ashland.

Marriott said a younger colored man, who is alleged to have knocked the aged victim against a curb on East Sixth street during the altercation, was being sought today.

Dr. George Emery, Ashland county coroner, who previously had said that Fuller died of a heart attack, was to conduct the autopsy.

Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp, Mansfield detectives, were in Kenton this afternoon to witness the autopsy. The body was exhumed this morning at the request of Prosecutor Marriott.

Police Scheme to Block Death Fall Fails; Defiant Victim Plummets to Street.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—John Ward, 26, a psycopath, spent 11 hours on a narrow ledge abutting the 17th floor of the Hotel Gotham, then jumped to instant death in the street below where 10,000 persons watched.

Three hundred policemen, 100 firemen, four physicians, his sister, his mother, a number of his friends and a priest had worked desperately to prevent his killing himself.

All Pleas Ignored.

Friends said today that all their efforts, all their pleadings, all the prayers of the approximately 100,000 pesons who, during the 11 hours, had looked up from the street at the dizzy height where he was perched, all the ingenuity of the technicians who devised a half dozen schemes to save him, had been doomed from the beginning to failure.

He had made up his mind weeks ago that he was not fit to live. He had tried twice before to kill himself. If he had been frustrated and had failed, he would have succeeded another time.

As police rigged a ship's cargo net on the 16th floor in which they hoped to enmesh him, he said to the policeman leaning out the window pleading with him:

"I have made up my mind. I wish you could convince me that life is worth living."

Ward jumped at 10.36 o'clock last night. Since 11.40 a. m. yes-

MAP EXPANSION

National Steel Company to Spend $5,000,000.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The National Steel corporation announced today it would spend $5,000,000 to enlarge plants of its subsidiary, the Weirton Steel company at Weirton, W. Va., to permit the manufacture of additional products.

Observers in the steel industry saw in the proposed expansion an attempt by the corporation guided by E. T. Weir, board chairman, to meet increased competition caused by abandonment of the "Pittsburgh plus" system of basing prices.

The corporation, fifth largest steel producer, said the new facilities were expected to be in operation by July 1, 1939.

CROWD AT FAIR ON OPENING DAY

Board Beams as Spectators Begin Early Trek to Big Farm Festival.

Viewed by fair board officials as an indication that the 1938 county fair will be an attendance record-breaker, a big opening day crowd streamed into the gates at the fairground today as exhibitors' halls were opened for the first time.

C. C. Hout, fair board secretary, said that the morning outpour of fair goers was a surprise to fair officials. He predicted that by the time racing fans crowd into the stands this afternoon, a new "opening day" record will have been set.

Aerial bombs sounded the opening of the fair at noon today. The bombs were exploded from the roof of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. This will be repeated each day at noon and at 7 p. m. in the evening.

The Richland county courthouse and Mansfield city hall will be closed tomorrow afternoon to allow county employes to attend the fair. Today is "Merchants'

COMMITTEE CONFERS

Senate Campaign Probers Consider Charge Against New Deal Campaign.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The special senate campaign investigating committee today weighed charges that federal jobholders in California are being "shaken down" for 5 per cent of their salaries to re-elect Senator William G. McAdoo, Democrat, who is running with open endorsement by President Roosevelt.

James W. Mellen of Los Angeles forwarded the charges. They immediately evoked notice from Chairman Morris Sheppard (D.) of Texas, that if they are found to bear substance the committee may quickly go to the Golden state and hold hearings.

Ponders Program.

Should the committee decide not to go immediately, an investigator undoubtedly will be sent to sift the complaints, it was expected.

Faced by a mountain of complaints of misuse of federal relief, and other funds to sway votes in the senatorial primary elections, the committee pondered a program. Investigators already sent into states were beginning to submit reports, but these were withheld from the public, at least temporarily.

First reports on the red hot senatorial races in Kentucky, Tennessee and Pennsylvania, were before the committee, with national interest focused upon the Kentucky race, in which Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler is trying to supplant Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley. Sheppard said he was desirous of making a find-

TVA Probers Seek Data on Project's Workings.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — (AP)—Investigators of the Tennessee Valley Authority turned to engineers today for additional information on the inner workings of that vast federal project.

Members of the joint congressional committee indicated that witnesses would be asked to enlarge on previous testimony of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan regarding their activities.

Dr. Morgan, deposed chairman of the TVA, told the committee last week that project engineers were "embarrassed" by requests of the agency's counsel prior to the 18-company power suit at Chattanooga last winter.

DAVEY WATCHING OUT FOR POISON?

Dines on Sandwiches Provided by State Patrol; Not Hotel.

LEBANON — (INS) — Governor Davey dined on sandwiches and milk provided by the state highway patrol after his campaign address here yesterday, it was revealed today. No lunch was ordered for the state's chief executive at the hotel where he was staying.

One political observer remarked that Davey was afraid of poisoning such as laid low Governor "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky. It was reported the governor ate half a cantaloupe provided by the hotel only after another man ate the first half.

BATTLE TO SAVE CHILD

MARION—(INS)—An oxygen tent was utilized today in an effort to save the life of 4-year-old Ronald Winters who darted from behind a parked car into the path of a moving automobile. At the city hospital his condition was reported as fair.

Calls Chandler's Illness Attack of 'Political Poison'

FRANKFORT, Ky.—(INS)—"Political poison" was the diagnosis made by the opposition camp today into the illness of Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, in the thick of a fight for the U. S. senatorial nomination.

The doctor of a Louisville hotel at which the governor was stricken last week charged that the campaigner's pitcher of ice water had been poisoned. State police instigated an investigation.

Gov. Chandler refused to be drawn into the controversy that resulted from the announcement of poisoning by Dr. J. W. Bryan.

Mrs. Chandler, however, reiterated her assertion that the water had been deliberately poisoned, despite the scoffing of Louisville police officials.

Adherents of Senator Alden W. Barkley made sport of the affair with mock-series statements that a corps of water tasters with a chief taster in charge would be present in the future to keep Barkley from falling victim to a similar plot.

Gov. Chandler said he would be able to resume the stump Thursday.

+ + + Mansfield Has Neglected Its School Buildings + + +

AN EDITORIAL

JUDGED by its public school buildings, the 30-year period from 1870 to 1900 was the era of real progress in Mansfield.

During that time SEVEN new school buildings were added to the two that had served the small city before 1870.

Since 1900 only THREE new public school buildings have been erected in Mansfield—Senior High, in 1926; Western avenue grade school, in 1911, and Woodland school in 1936.

While prosperous Mansfield's public school system has been limping along under the handicap of buildings designed for a half century ago, without modern sanitation and lighting and with fire hazards that are eliminated by modern construction, LOOK WHAT HAS BEEN DONE IN A NUMBER OF OTHER OHIO CITIES, COMPARABLE TO MANSFIELD IN SIZE—

Since 1900 Marion has provided TWELVE new school buildings for its children; Warren, 14, Portsmouth, 17; Hamilton, 12; East Liverpool, 12; Massillon, 10; Alliance, 10; Lima, 9; Newark, 9.

Then consider what Mansfield has been doing for its school children. The Bushnell school building (East Fourth street) was built in 1869, the same year in which the West Fifth street school was built—within a few years after the close of the Civil war. Carpenter school (West First) was built the following year; Hedges school in 1871; Newman in 1879; Brinkerhoff (Marion avenue) in 1884; Bowman in 1886; John Simpson Junior high in 1891 and Prospect in 1895.

During that 30 years Mansfield's school-building program reflected this city's interest in providing increased school facilities as needs grew—and forty years ago, with a population well under half of what it now has—Mansfield was justified in being proud of its public school facilities, which ranked high among schools of other Ohio cities of similar size.

From its population of 8,029 in 1870 to 17,640 in 1900 Mansfield built SEVEN new school buildings. With a growth to 20,768 by 1910, no school was built in that decade. In 1911 the increasing needs in the west part of the city resulted in the building of Western avenue school, after which 15 years passed and the city's population grew to above 32,000 before Senior High school was ready for use. Woodland grade school, erected in 1936, is the only other building added to the city school system in 43 years.

It is now planned to carefully and economically expend a million dollars to modernize Mansfield's school housing facilities, replacing John Simpson Junior high with a new building, adding a second junior high school and installing modern sanitation in present grade school buildings.

Voters of Mansfield school district are asked to approve, on Tuesday, August, 9, a bond issue of $550,000 to qualify for a federal government grant of $450,000 to carry through the million-dollar school building and modernizing project.

All sections of Mansfield will be directly benefited by this school-building program and THE ACTUAL COST TO TAXPAYERS WILL BE SURPRISINGLY SMALL AS COMPARED WITH THE BENEFITS.

It is planned that the bonds will extend over a twenty-year period, during which the estimated requirement in tax money would average 83 cents per year on each $1,000 of tax value.

This average would be reduced, however, by the fact that a levy of 40 cents per thousand dollars of valuation, to retire school bonds outside the 10-mill limit, will stop with taxes payable in 1939—thus making an annual increase of ONLY 43 CENTS PER THOUSAND OF TAX VALUE TO CARRY THROUGH THIS MILLION-DOLLAR BUILDING PROJECT!

To approve this bond issue it is necessary that 65 per cent of the votes cast at the election on Tuesday, August 9 shall be favorable.

It is important that every eligible voter in Mansfield become fully acquainted with present conditions in public school buildings and the urgent need for improvements, so that they will recognize an obligation to vote FOR the bond issue.

The health, safety and future educational opportunities of Mansfield children rest upon the decision—and these are factors against which a small increase in taxes weighs lightly.

Father Waits Fate In 'Insurance Slaying' of Son, 12

JURORS ORDER DEATH OR LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Roadhouse Operator Says Two Waitresses Drew Straws to Decide Who Would Kill.

(By United Press)

WAYCROSS, Ga. — Harvey Nelson, 35-year-old roadhouse proprietor, will be sentenced to death or life imprisonment today for slaying his 12-year-old son in a plot to collect $900 double indemnity on a policy covering the boy's life.

A jury of merchants, farmers and railroad men deliberated 45 minutes, found Nelson guilty of first degree murder, and did not recommend mercy.

Teh state demanded the death penalty. Judge M. D. Dickerson said he would pronounce sentence today.

Repeats Confession.

Nelson, on the stand, repeated his original confession of the insurance plot which he had retracted in part at hearing preceding his trial.

His story was that he, Verna Mae Fowler and Mary Kent, waitresses at his establishment, conspired to kill the boy, J. C. Nelson, and obtain $300 each on the double indemnity policy.

These two women drew straws to see which should kill the boy, Nelson testified, Miss Fowler drew the fatal straw. He asserted that she shot the lad to death on the back porch of the roadhouse last May 26.

Miss Fowler on the stand denied the shooting, declaring she saw Nelson shoot his son through the chest.

Denies His Charges.

Mary Kent, released when Nelson refused to testify against her at a commitment hearing, was rearrested during the trial and called to the stand. She denied Nelson's story of the straw-drawing and charged he alone was responsible for J. C.'s death.

The two women worked and lived at Nelson's combination home and roadhouse on the outskirts of this south Georgia tobacco town.

Nelson also faces trial on charges of beating to death his wife. He was convicted of slaying her and sentenced to 20 years in prison but the Georgia supreme court granted him a new trial.

Farm Family of 18 Wins Contest as 'County's Biggest'

Richland county's "biggest farm family," according to the contest just concluded by the Madison theater, is so big that all of the members can't be assembled at one time. There are 18 persons in it, 16 children and the parents.

The family of William Karbula, R. D. 2, Lexington, nosed out the family of R. O. Smith, R. D. 3, Shelby, last night just before the contest closed, and as a result the Karbulas will have their "happy interlude" tonight as guests of the Madison theater and the Parkway restaurant.

While the Smiths have 11 children, the Karbulas have 16. Of the entire family 12 children live in Richland county, one is in a CCC camp in Idaho and three work in other cities. The children who are at home and the parents will attend the show, "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

The winning group will be provided with transportation tonight to and from their home by the Mohican Chevrolet agency; they will be guests of the Parkway restaurant for dinner; the mother will receive flowers from Carek's and a box of candy from Shumaker's drug store for the family. Isaly's Park avenue store will "treat" them after the show.

A collection of 173 nameplates of automobiles dating back to the birth of this industry is on display in the window of the City Loan company. Approximately half of the cars represented in the collection are no longer manufactured. Among them are the Stanley Steamer, the Inter-State, and Briscoe. John Mahon, 123 Blymyer avenue, stepped on No. 2 tee at Possum Run golf course yesterday, took a No. 2 iron from his bag—and shot a hole-in-one. Then he proceeded around the course, thinking practically nothing of it. Not until he got to the clubhouse, and was overwhelmed by the excitement of attendants when he told them he'd gotten "one of those holes-in-one," did he realize what a rarity an "ace" really is. He's only been playing golf for three weeks. It was the year's third at Possum Run and the sixth of the season on a Mansfield course. Mahon admitted that his score, despite his ace, was "in the 60's.".

It came by Western Union and contains a business promotion message. The telegram is 32 by 36 inches and the envelope in which it was delivered was 12 by 18 inches. It even had a "window" on the front of the envelope, such as the regular messages have.

UNCOVERS RARE BEETLE COLONY

Researcher Finds Black Sarklings On Island Driftwood.

KINGSVILLE, Tex.—(AP)—In 14 years of search for the black sarkling beetle, Prof. Joe C. Brown of Texas A. and I. college never had found more than five in any one colony until a recent trip.

Then he discovered 19 — more than he had obtained in previous finds combined—under driftwood on an island in Corpus Christi bay.

The life history of the beetle has not been defined and is one of entomology's major question marks. in 1919 the U. S. bureau of entomology offered a prize for complete information on the bug but the reward has never been claimed.

WHEAT 'BEST IN 20 YEARS'

New Crop Continues to Pour Into Richland Elevators; Prices Half of 1937.

Wheat described as the "best quality in 20 years" continued to pour into Mansfield and Richland county grain elevators today as farmers neared the end of their threshing season.

Prices, however, remained at about half of last year's. Quotations held at 62 cents per bushel for No. 1 wheat and 61 cents for No. 2 grain, millers said.

Grain dealers predicted that most of the threshing from the shock will be completed in the county this week unless rain interferes. A considerable quantity of wheat, however, was stored in barns and will be threshed late in the summer when prices may be better, millers said.

Average yield in the county is from 20 to 22 bushels per acre while a few farmers have reported harvesting as much as 35 to 40 bushels, J. O. Hanley, of the Hanley Milling company, said.

The grain is testing 60 and 62 pounds, the best in the last 20 years, and the moisture content is negligible, the Lantz mill, Mansfield, reported.

Grain dealers attributed the low price to a huge holdover of last year's crop and heavy production this year in the western wheat states.

HITS LAW SCHOOL PROFESSORS IN 3RD BRANCH OF PROFESSION

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Before the American Bar association today was a suggestion from President Arthur T. Vanderbilt to consider the "problem" of the law school professor who talks "with his tongue in his cheek and his eye on page 1, column 1 of the daily newspaper."

The association's assembly, entering the third day of the 61st annual convention, was scheduled to receive a controversial report of a committee on administrative law, headed by Dean Emeritus Roscoe Pound of Harvard.

Jerome N. Frank, member of the securities and exchange commission, has charged the committee's report "defames" Commission Chairman William O. Douglas by asserting the Sec acted "in a biased manner."

Vanderbilt, of Newark, N. J., told the association's section on legal education that professors, as special advisers to governmental departments and co-operators in bar reforms, constitute "a third branch of the legal profession" with "a freedom greater than that accorded to either judge or advocate."

"That freedom obligates him above all others to dedicate his thought and utterances to the truth and the truth alone," Vanderbilt said.

"Must he not avoid the exhibitionism which has characterized too many of our so-called publicists? Must he not refrain from talking with his tongue in his cheek and his eye on page 1, column 1 of the daily newspaper?"

A resolution by Dean Edward T. Lee of John Marshall Law school, Chicago, for information on Justice Hugo L. Black's eligibility to serve on the supreme court is due to reach the convention floor tomorrow.

Lee refused to withdraw the resolution yesterday after Circuit Judge Richard D. Evans of Birmingham, Ala., protested against it. Marvin Woodall, past president of the Birmingham Bar association, termed the resolution "impertinent." Justice Black vacationing in Colorado, declined comment.

BOOSTER WAVE FOR ROOSEVELT STIRS ACTION

Senate Resolution Frowning on Extra Term Recalled as 'Campaign' Grows.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A Republican-Democratic coalition effort in the senate to foreclose third term possibilities for President Roosevelt appeared likely to develop today from agitation over his 1940 plans.

Mr. Roosevelt has made no categorical statement whether he will be a 1940 candidate or retire. His public utterances, however, have intimated a desire to leave office.

But some of his associates and supporters have suggested directly or indirectly that circumstances might compel him to make the race in 1940 and that it might be just as well if he did. Partly for that reason the nation has broken out in a rash of third term comment. It need only continue at its present volume to assure both house and senate discussion of the matter when congress next meets.

Resolution Recalled.

When a third term storm blew around Calvin Coolidge in 1928 the senate expressed itself in a resolution not at all binding upon any nominating convention, but one which doubtless would have been taken into consideration if Mr. Coolidge's name had been put before the Republicans in Chicago that year. Adopted by a vote of 56 to 26, the resolution said:

"It is the sense of the senate that the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States in retiring from the presidential office after their second term has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our Republican system of government, and that any departure from this time honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., recalled that resolution this week and invited attention to the fact that senators now rated as New Dealers were in the senate at the time and voted for it. These include Barkley, D., Ky., Ashurst, D., Ariz., McKellar, D., Tenn., Hayden, D., Ariz., Neely, D., W. Va., Pittman, D., Nev., Sheppard, D., Tex., Thomas, D., Okla., and Wagner, D., N. Y.

J. E. SCOTT DIES

Postal Clerk for 49 Years Stricken in California.

J. E. Scott, who was a Mansfield postoffice clerk for 49 years, died yesterday at his home in Santa Monica, Cal., after an illness of six months. He was 79.

Mr. Scott left Mansfield, where he had spent most of his life in July of last year. He had retired from postoffice duty in 1929.

Surviving are a brother, J. H. Scott; a sister, Mrs. R. C. Jones, and a niece, Mrs. Earl Hammond, with whom he made his home here, all of Mansfield, two sisters in Cleveland and one in Pittsburgh.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today, but it was expected that burial would be in California.

RESIDENT HERE 14 YEARS, DIES

Mrs. Hockensmith, 60, Ill Several Months; Funeral Saturday.

Mrs. Almeda Hockensmith, 60, of 129 Lida street, wife of W. M. Hockensmith, died at the home today after an illness of several months. She had been a resident the city 14 years.

Survivors include her husband, four sons, Harry Feeman of Detroit, and Richard, Benjamin and Clark Feeman of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Ross, Mansfield and Mrs. Helen Carpenter of Lancaster, and 10 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Wappner funeral home at 10 a. m. Saturday with Rev. J. W. Wilkerson of Glad Tidings tabernacle officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

WARNS OF RABIES

Rehder Urges Southern Richland to Watch for Stray Dogs.

With an outbreak of rabies in Knox county near the Richland county line, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today warned residents in that section to be on the watch for stray dogs.

Dr. Rehder said that two persons had been bitten by a dog believed to be from the southern part of the county. He urged residents in that section to keep their dogs tied and to watch for any peculiar actions on the part of the animals as well as cats, horses and cows which also are susceptible to the disease.

FAIR ENOUGH!

In Italy, Athletes Win or Pay; Il Duce Offers No Sportsmanship Code

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The Italian football federation has fined the Ambrosiana club, holder of the national championship and defender of Fascist honor and prestige, for doing a guadalajara in a contest with the Yugoslavs.

The Ambrosianas lost, 9 to 0. As punishment they will have to pay 5,000 lire. They also have been forbidden to play outside Italy, where foreigners might see them and receive an unconvincing impression of Fascist invincibility, until Sept. 30. By that time, if they have improved sufficiently the association will consider the advisability of taking another chance with the Ambrosianas.

* * *

The fining of amateur athletes for failure on the field will seem grotesque to Americans, who have often accused themselves of overemphasis on sports but have never regarded an athletic defeat as a national calamity or a victory as a triumph for the state.

The Fascists and Nazis take a more serious view, however. The Fascist football clubs are part of the regime, and players who go abroad to represent Italy must come back with their shields or on them. They bear a heavier responsibility than the sportsmen of the free nations—a fact which may account in part for their extraordinary touchiness and their rather frequent violations of the generally accepted sporting code.

* * *

In this country a few years ago it was discovered that the college baseball players were operating under the rules drawn for the professional game and were technically liable to be fined for breaches of training or discipline.

There was no likelihood that any college coach or captain would attempt to invoke this rule, but, nevertheless, the colleges decided to eliminate it from their book on the ground that a player who sto od to gain no money by competing well should not stand to lose money by competing badly.

The Fascist prestige has been a distinct handicap to Italian sportsmanship on several notable occasions. Intended to act as wings on their heels—and Fascist sport has produced some notable heels—it has often served as a heavy burden when the invincible sportsmen felt they had to win or go home in disgrace. Under the Fascist code it is a disgrace to lose fairly and gallantly but an honor to win by any means.

* * *

The chivalry by which the decadent democracies set so much store was abandoned early in the reign of the Duce, when a gallant gesture brought unpleasant results. On that occasion an Austrian soccer team from Innsbruck beat a Fascist team from Milan, and the Milan club thought it would be pretty to send the Austrians a substantial token of friendship. The Milanese were long on chivalry but short on tact, however, for the token took the form of an enormous cast iron statue of Mussolini which was shipped F. O. B. Milan.

Not only was the Innsbruck team too poor to pay the freight, which was considerable, but a statue of Mussolini, who had forbidden the native Tyrolean yodel among the captive Austrians in Italy, was the very thing that all Austrians wanted least. For a combination of both reasons the Innsbruckers refused to accept the monument, which lay on a flat car in the freight yard, running up charges, and wired the Milanese to send up and get it. They said they considered the statue an insult, and the Milanese said this telegram was an insult to them.

* * *

This threw the Milanese into a great fury, and it looked as though the wretched Innsbruckers would have to load their cast iron Mussolini into guns and shoot him back a little at a time, until a nameless peacemaker hit upon a happy solution. The Innsbruckers ordered a foundry to cast a set of whiskers for the statue and changed the detested Mussolini into the beloved Gambrinus, the inventor of beer.

Later, however, the Viennese team had the ill manners to beat another group of Fascism's invincible defenders, and this time the press of Rome took up the outrage frankly as such. Chivalry was for the weak and decadent and not for those who live like lions, and the press of Mussolini's Rome openly threatened to block a loan to Austria which was then under consideration by the League of Nations.

* * *

In the last Olympic games in Berlin, Mussolini's invincibles ganged a referee during a game with the Americans and clapped their hands over his mouth so that he could not speak to expel an invincible from the game for fouling an American player. And nobody who was present will forget the cutlery shower which descended from the galleries in Madison Square Garden the night that an American amateur boxer badly defeated the Fascist flyweight champion, Edelweiss Drodriguez, who threw himself on the floor and screamed at the decision, but like a lion.

These episodes are trivial to the victors, who usually are able to win without undue exultation, but they are little Guadalajaras to the Duce, and the Ambrosiana club has been guilty of a grave betrayal of "a sacred trust."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

(Billie Burke, Hollywood's first lady of comedy, today stands-in for Robbin Coons, our movie columnist, who is on vacation.)

By BILLIE BURKE

HOLLYWOOD—If it's all the same to you, Robbin Coons, I've been wanting for a long time to do a "dear diary" on the trials of living up—or down, as the case may be—to a stage and screen character. You have no idea of how difficult it is to lead a sane, normal life when every stranger you meet, who's seen any of your pictures, expects you to give him a bland smile and say how only that morning you took the goldfish out of the bowl and washed them with soap and water.

When I go into a department store to buy a pair of gloves I'm like as not to bring forth a battery of the store's most solicitous salespeople. They give me the same protection they would a ten-year-old child venturing forth with her first five-dollar bill and have the most mournful look on their faces when I don't start trying the gloves on the clerk—just to be in character. I think they expect me to punch the time-clock on my way out.

* * *

GRACIE ALLEN may not know it, but I was a very sympathetic audience for her the other day. She placed a straightforward specific order for a pair of stockings, and the salesgirl broke into a peal of laughter. By the time Gracie received her package, the whole counter of clerks was almost in hysterics.

Then there was the time Boris Karloff's gardener turned around to find the actor giving him a very intent, studied look. The man fled the place, without stopping for clothes or baggage. Poor Karloff really was interested in analyzing the gardener's face. He wanted to copy it in his make-up for his next picture.

Basil Rathbone tells me he had one of the most unhappily embarrassed moments of his life when an excited woman accosted him at the preview of "David Copperfield" screaming "I hate you. I hate you." "I cringe sometimes," says Basil, "when I think that I'm one of the most despised of screen characters." I know just how Basil feels.

* * *

I never cease being amused at the shocked expressions on the faces of new acquaintances when they discover that I eat my breakfast, wind my clock, get to the set on time, have my shower on schedule, and lead the same kind of life as any other human. I'm a zany on the screen and stage and they think I should be that way in real life.

—Advice—

Can Man Be Won By Petting?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Here's a nice little riddle for you. Guess the name of the heroine of this story. It's a classic. More than a classic. The orthodox regard it as hollowed, a story set apart—sacred.

It's a tale of a beautiful young woman, a man, and the advice she received from an older woman. You see the heroine, all strength in weakness, ripe, luscious as a pomegranite, following a course not unknown today.

The man is as helpless as the next, when a couple of clever women, or even one, pits her wits against him. Downright female insight, plus courage and skill go into the making of this story of sex subjugation. The forthright campaign of these two women, over which many sentimental tears have been shed, would seem startling to even the most hard-boiled girl of today. But the man fell for it and married the girl.

Evidently the girl's feelings were not involved, she merely took the older woman's advice. Women in love are inept at a cool, calculating game; their emotions defeat the most skillful moves. They are pawns of fate.

We will drop this classic story, and take up the same tactics as tried out in modern times. The scene of many "high life" novels, as you are well aware, is apt to include a house party. And house parties in England have been so prolific of petting men right into the jaws of matrimony, that the wary, who can't afford to marry or don't want to marry, avoid them. American house parties are not far behind in furnishing the time, the place, the man, the petting.

Countless opportunities for petting occur on every side in weekends among charming surroundings. Girls and men are of the same social stratum. There is likely to be a good deal of drinking—that eternal toe of prudence. The guileless male accepts an invitation to a house party with no thought that maybe the cards are stacked against him.

Being a simple soul he wastes little time wondering why he has made such a hit with Miss ——, or he ascribes it to his own intrinsic charm. The house party breaks up, and the petted young man goes his way and probably thinks little about it, except that it was a swell party.

But—a few weeks later, when the girl, a picture of lovely, tearful anguish teels him that she thought their romantic interlude was a proposal of marriage, the man in nine cases out of ten will do what he regards as the decent thing, and suggests an immediate marriage.

The girl, who has risked everything on the chance, has tradition and background on her side. She and the man are both of the same set. They have known each other—brothers, sisters, in-laws are all friends, or at least they go to the same parties.

The man, stunned, baffled, hardly knowing what to make of the situation, feels that he just can't ditch the girl. There isn't a day to lose. The young lady suggests an elopement; he agrees. A man has been petted into marriage.

Chicken Chop Suey Suggested

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

EACH ONE of the recipes today is in response to requests from readers. We thought perhaps that other followers of this column might wish to file these recipes, each one tried and tested.

Chicken chop suey with rice is a splendid dish for stretching that leftover chicken into another satisfying meal. Besides the two cups shredded, cooked chicken, the ingredients include one cup shredded green pepper, two cups shredded celery and leaves, one and one-half cups chicken broth, four tablespoons soy sauce, three tablespoons butter, one cup shredded onion, two cups canned bean sprouts, one cup toasted almonds and one tablespoon cornstarch. Melt the butter in he skillet. Put in the green pepper and the onion. Cook a few minutes, but do not brown. Add the meat and cook five minutes. Add celery, bean sprouts and broth reserving enough broth to make a paste with the cornstarch. Add the paste and cook gently for 10 minutes, stirring well and carefully. Stir in toasted almonds and soy sauce. Add mushrooms if desired. Serve with hot steamed rice.

Savory salad is a favorite at our house. To serve six we use one and one-half cups elbow macaroni, one cup leftover cooked ham (diced), one-half cup chopped sour pickle, three-quarters cup celery (diced), three tablespoons minced pimento, two tablespoons chopped parsley, two tablespoons grated onion, three tablespoons vinegar, two-thirds cup mayonnaise and one teaspoon salt. Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender, about 15 minutes. Drain and, when cool, add the diced ham and other ingredients. Blend all together with mayonnaise, mixing well. Chill in automatic refrigerator. Serve in lettuce cups and garnish with radish slices. Cold sliced ham may be served with this salad, in which case the ham should be omitted.

Cool Day Dessert.

If it happens to be a cool day and you want to do some baking, then here's a dessert that should appeal to the youngsters—that is, if their elders leave them any! Butterscotch cake takes one-half cup butter, one and one-half packed cups brown sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, two eggs, two cups sifted cake flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-halp cup milk and 12 marshmallows. Mix sugar and butter; cook over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cool, add vanilla. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after addition of each. Mix and sift dry ingredients together, add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Beat until smooth. Do not overbeat. Pour into a well-greased nine by nine-inch pan. Place the marshmallows at intervals on top and bake in preheated over at 350 F. for 50 minutes.

NOTES IN THE DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

I'm on board ship at last, and glad of the rest. I had a hectic time to get to the ship because, as usual, I mislaid my keys. But I found them.

Pam and Ken and the youngsters came down to the boat with me, and I found my cabin just filled with nice things. Madame had sent me a case filled with the most wonderful cosmetics, while Howard had sent me six of the latest best-sellers.

We sailed at noon, and after lunch I went to my cabin to unpack. I thought that I would rest a few minutes, but when I woke up it was dark. I rang and found out that dinner had been over for some time, so I ordered some sandwiches and fruit, did my unpacking, had a bath and went to bed again. Next morning I felt marvelous, and I was up bright and early.

Movie Star Aboard.

There are some charming people aboard. A famous movie star is one of the passengers, and she was up walking the deck when I came from my cabin. But she was so simple, so plainly dressed, that one would never have suspected that she was a star. There was another girl on deck, and she wore so many colors, so much jewelry, that she attracted plenty of attention—but none of it favorable. She wore dark glasses, and it is my guess that she thought that she would be mistaken for the star. People were looking at her, but, believe me, no one took her for a movie star. I recognized her at once, for she has been in our shop.

Lots of women are wearing neat little frocks that look as good on shipboard as on the golf links.

Here is one such model. It is of white, washable fabric, and is the essence of smart simplicity. The entire bosom is tucked with studs for closing. Two flap pockets are placed very high on the hips—right under the multi-colored elastic belt. The skirt is cut with inverted pleats front and back of the flared skirt for action.

THIS AND THAT: When George Raft was in Hot Springs, Ark., he had to be thrown in jail—temporarily—to protect him from the fans. Or so says a columnist . . . Sophie Tucker is washed up with Hollywood and has decided to call the whole thing off . . . They went to the trouble of renting a very high-powered diamond necklace for Jeanette MacDonald in "Sweethearts," but when it was filmed in colors, it showed up like a phoney. So they had one made out of cut glass prisms which photoed like a million . . . Jon Hall is making personal appearances with his bride, Frances Langford . . . Estelle Taylor, once a movie siren and wife of Jack Dempsey, is singing in light opera at the Cleveland Aquastage.

Darrieux Debut.

The long publicized American debut of Danielle Darrieux is made in "The Rage of Paris," the Madison attraction for the last half of the week. Mlle. Darrieux won international recognition in the French picture "Mayerling," in which she played the tragic Countess Vetsera to Charles Boyer's mad Rudolph. The picture was shown in metropolitan cities in America and her wistful, spiritual face was remembered. But whether American make-up artists have given her a bad start with a freak hairdress and overly made-up face remains to be seen. In "Mayerling" she displayed talent as well as beauty. In her American picture she has the co-star support of Douglas Fairbanks, jr. It's the story of a little French girl, penniless and homeless in New York City, who sets out to capture a millionaire.

Impressive Cast.

A supporting cast of impressive proportions is seen in the Barbara Stanwyck-Herbert Marshall picture, "Always Goodbye," which was made from the story by Gilbert Emery and Douglas Doty. There is Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Lynn Bari, Binnie Barnes, Mary Forbes, Franklin Pangborn, and Albert Conti. The picture is booked for the Ohio, starting Thursday. It's the story of a beautiful, intelligent girl and her illegitimate child, of two men who loved her, one of whom she loved and one she marries. Miss Stanwyck is seen after a series of character portrayals in the type that first made her famous—as a glamor girl. She stages a one-woman style show with 20 new costumes that should appeal to women fans.

Small Town Politics.

A comedy mystery, "One Wild Night," and a Will Rogers reissue, "The County Chairman," make up the bill which runs through Thursday at the Majestic. The former is a mystery revolving around extortion and counterfeit money and involving practically everyone in a small city. June Lang, Dick Baldwin, and Lyle Talbot are featured. The second film, which has been shown in Mansfield on several different occasions, shows the late comedian in one of George Ade's best known stories and plays. He is a small town firebrand politician who gives up his fight when it threatens to wreck the love affair of two young people. Kent Taylor, Evelyn Venable, and Mickey Rooney are in the cast.

Durbin Music.

Two pictures, widely different in theme and locale and character portrayal are billed at the Ritz through today and tomorrow. Deanne Durbin of the lovely face and voice charms again in "Mad About Music," in which she is an imaginative child in a French private school, making up a father who is a big game hunter. And when she has to produce him, she does it in style. Herbert Marshall and Gail Patrick are her foster father and her mother. The feuds of the lumber industry in the northwest is the theme of the James Oliver Curwood novel, "God's Country and the Woman," from which the picture was made. George Brent and Beverly Roberts are seen in this Technicolor film.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, July 28.

A rather disruptive influence is read from the dominant planetary configurations, with much of vital importance concerned with the breaking away of long stagnant and crystallized conditions. And while there are signs of some progress and advancement, with sudden change and fresh opportunities, yet there are stubborn obstacles as well as dangers of loss through speculative ventures to be hurdled.

If This is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a difficult and conflicting year, in which there may be promising openings but many obstacles and impediments to cope with. It is a period of breaking away from congestions and unproductive situations, for reorganizing and planning anew for future success, but go slow in speculation and untried projects.

A child born on this day may be industrious, tenacious, plodding and, at the same time, adventurous and fond of change. It may have a tendency for "show" and unconventional and careless habits, particularly in money matters.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

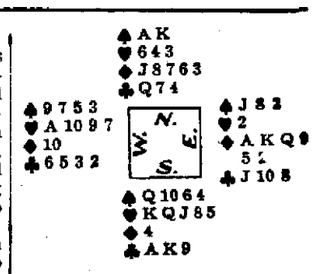
"The Authority on Authorities"

REFUSE TEMPTATION

Rapid players can seldom pass up a chance to over-ruff an opposing honor. We all like to kill off the big cards, and the speedsters just naturally do it as a matter of instinct. Many a time, however, a bit of thought will point out the wisdom of letting the trick go in exchange for two tricks later on.

After a bid of 1-Heart by South on this deal. North called 1-No Trump, East 2-Diamonds, South 2-Hearts, North 3-Hearts and South 4-Hearts.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

West led his diamond 10, which East won with the Q, in order to return a diamond, dummy having played the 3. The diamond return was ruffed by South with the heart J and West over-ruffed with the A. He returned the club 2, which South won with the K. The hearts K and Q were cashed, leaving West with the high trump. A spade was played to the A, and after the K was taken a club was led to the A and the remaining spades cashed. Declarer lost two hearts and one diamond, making game.

Had West discarded on the second trick, instead of using his heart A to capture South's J, he would have made three heart tricks instead of two and would have set the hand. South also made a mistake by playing his honor. The heart 5 should have been played, which West would have won with the 7. He then would have been limited to two hearts.

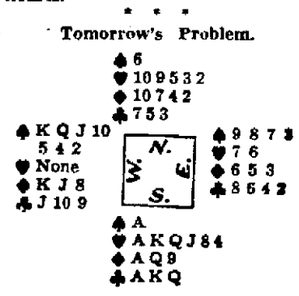
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

With the spade K led against his 6-Heart contract, how should South plan the play?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

As I made my rash promise to my mother-in-law to tell her every thing we knew of the situation about which Katie had so deeply offended her, Dicky deftly caught the cue I thus gave him, and drew forward the big comfortable rocker in which Katie takes her ease between spells of work.

"Yes, Mother, do sit down," he echoed. "This is quite a long story."

She seated herself with dignity, and folded her hands in her lap.

"I am listening," she said loftily.

In as few words as possible, I rapidly gave her the outline of my father's message in code to me, of the cordon the state police had thrown around the place to guard it, and of the directions my father had sent me for the housing of our guests. Long before I had finished her eyes were sparkling with excitement.

"This is most interesting," she said. "Four guests! I wonder who they can be?"

She rose abruptly from her chair and crossed to me, Dicky and I watching her with attentive and timorous eyes.

"Of course you're getting supper," she said. "What are you planning?"

"I thought of making a chicken pie," I told her. "There is plenty of meat and gravy left from the fricassee, and it will be hot, nourishing, palatable—I hope—and it will be easy for Katy to prepare. I have the coffee all measured and ready to percolate."

"Then you go on and see to that ape upstairs, so that she doesn't tear down the house, and I'll see to things here until you both are ready to come down and help me. But you're going to need other things beside chicken pie. Never mind, I'll think up something."

My heart traveled to my boots again. With Mother Graham rampant—there was no other word fitting—in the kitchen, I could visualize what would happen when Katie should get through her arranging of Mary's room, and come down ready to prepare supper. She had looked askance at me when I had announced my intention of getting things ready for her. What would she do or say when she found Mother Graham in charge, Mother Graham, who had the uncanny power, as Dicky puts it, to "raise every separate pin-feather on Katie's back?"

Has Inspiration.

From somewhere came an inspiration, and I acted on it quickly.

"Mother Dear, do you feel equal to making that famous salad of yours?" I queried. "I hate to ask you, for it takes so much time, but it would be so nice to have it, and you know the longer it marinates the better it is. Katie and I can manage the rest of the supper nicely, but I wouldn't dare tackle that salad, and, of course, I wouldn't think of letting Katie attempt it."

"I should think not!" she said heatedly. Then her tone was amicable again.

"I don't mind in the least," she said. "But—where can I make it? I simply can't stand having that ape breathe down the back of my neck while I'm working."

"I know," I said sympathetically, feeling a mean disloyalty to Katie as I voiced the sentiment. "And I have a splendid scheme. If you'll come into the dining room, Dicky'll put a service table at one side of the room, so you'll be—so we won't disturb you when we're setting the table."

"Why don't you say what you started?" she asked with a frosty smile. "—so I'll be out of the way."

"I didn't mean," I stammered, aghast at my unfortunate slip of the tongue.

But astonishingly she did not seem offended.

"That seems a good scheme, except that it's a long way to travel for the ingredients."

"Let Dicky and me attend to that detail," I told her, and in five more minutes she was cozily ensconced at the table I had indicated, and was happily busy with the salad ingredients Dicky and I had brought her. I knew that she was, in Dicky's phraseology, "set for an hour," and indeed she had barely finished the concoction of her salad—famous for its luscious taste, infamous for the time and energy it takes to make it—when the captain of the state troopers presented himself at the kitchen door.

"Car is coming along the wood road," he said.

DeLux-Beeber-Ross Series Attractive

Draws Near-Record Crowds at Johns Park Games; Resume Heated Rivalry Friday Evening.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

INTEREST in the softball sport in the city may not be as general as it was several years ago, but the major games continue to attract good-sized crowds.

A current series which is packing 'em in involves the DeLuxe Cabs and Beeber-Ross Beers, who collide for the third time Friday at Johns park.

The Beermen won the first game, but the second was halted by rain in the first of the fifth with the Cabbies in front.

* * * * *

According to officials of the City Class A softball league, the circuit games have been well attended this season, and the attendance should increase in the second half with a tighter race in progress.

The crowd which attended the league tilt at Johns park Monday was believed to have been one of the largest ever to witness a softball game there.

* * * * *

The series to determine the semi-pro baseball championship of the city has not lost its attractiveness. Hi-Speeds' followers insist. They do not deny that the American Legion club was superior in the opening game decided by an 8 to 0 score, but contend that a different story will be told at the next meeting to be played at a date yet to be decided.

* * * * *

Meanwhile, the Legionnaires, contented with their victory over the Hi-Speeds, are turning their attention toward their next foes in the Central Ohio league. They travel to Jackson Sunday to engage the present league leader, and what transpires down there will determine the Legion team's title chances. Manager Dewey Durant's men are tied for second place.

* * * * *

Members of teams in the junior leagues sponsored by the city recreation department are learning a lot of baseball this year. In addition to playing regular schedules, the players attend schools at which experienced baseball men are the instructors. The type of ball these kid teams are playing is remarkable, and several will be major prospects within a few years if their development is not halted.

* * * * *

Nick's Place Meets Oldsters at League Park.

NICK'S PLACE meets the Mohican CCC Indians of Loudonville in a softball game at League park at 6:30 p. m. Thursday. The youngest member of the CCC team is 32, and the oldest . . . well, some of Nick's players thought around 60. But the fact that they can play ball is attested by the fact that they lost to Nick's club by a 4 to 2 score last Sunday. Nick's team is one of the Commercial league leaders.

* * * * *

HOSPITAL NOTE: Young "Duke" Weber, we understand, suffered a broken wrist while performing with Prospect Park against Johns Park Monday. The injury was suffered while going into third base on a close play.

* * * * *

Add casualties: Petie Beer, who is reported to have ruined his pitching arm in the Hi-Speeds' game with the Legionnaires Sunday. Beer is expected to be out of action the rest of the year.

Three-Day Race Program Opens at Fairground Oval Today

CUBS THREATEN TO OVERTAKE GIANTS, CLIMB WITHIN HALF GAME OF CHAMPS

By ANTHONY J. PUGLIESE

NEW YORK —(INS)— Storming along under the guiding hand of Gabby Hartnett, their new pilot, the Chicago Cubs today have thrust themselves back into the heat of the National League race, by advancing to within a half a game of the second place New York Giants.

Since Gabby took over the reins, the Bruins have captured five out of six, including three straight from the Giants, and consequently, have established themselves as a distinct threat for the pennant.

With Dizzy Dean back in service on the mound, some of the pressure has been taken from Big Bill Lee, Charley Root and Clay Bryant, and a new confidence has struck the Cubs. This factor may be the difference between a miserable season and a pennant.

The Cubs' latest victory was a 10 to 8 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, as Tot Pressnell uncorked a wild pitch with two out in the ninth, allowing Hartnett to score the winning run. Larry French, who won his seventh game, then doubled to score Collins with the final tally.

The league leading Pittsburgh Pirates tripped over the Philadelphia Phillies, losing 6 to 5 as Mace Brown, their brilliant relief pitcher, walked Gilly Brack with the bases loaded in the ninth to force in the winning run. Johnny Rizzo's ninth home run was wasted as the Bucs blew a 5-run early lead.

Home runs by Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 6 to 5 triumph over the Giants, who remained four games back of Pitsburgh.

Paul Derringer held Boston to five hits and hit a home run to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 6 to 2 victory over the Bees. Wally Berger also homered to aid Derringer to his 13th victory.

In the American circuit, the New York Yankees stretched their league lead to a game and a half by taking two games from the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 5 and 12 to 5 as the Cleveland Indians won a 4 to 2 decision from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Joe Gordon and Joe Di Maggio homered in the opener to give Monte Pearson his seventh victory. Harland Clift and Ralph Kress hit for the circuit for the Browns. In the nightcap, Spud Chandler pitched his ninth victory and hit a home run in a 13-hit attack on four St. Louis hurlers. The game was called at the end of the eighth due to darkness. Bill Sullivan homered for St. Louis.

Hank Greenberg hit his 30th and 31st home runs to give the Detroit Tigers a 6 to 5 triumph over the Washington Senators.

The Chicago White Sox, aided by Hank Steinbacher's homer and double and Ted Lyons' 10-hit pitching, defeated the Boston Red Sox, 9 to 1. It was Lyons' fifth victory.

Bob Blazes Again

Feller Strengthens Pennant Hopes by Pitching Airtight Ball to Defeat A's, 4 to 2.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Bob Feller was back on the highway to fame today and beside him marched the pennant hopes of the Cleveland Indians.

After a month of indifferent performances during which he gained only one triumph and was knocked out of the box five times, Feller flashed the form that made him baseball's "boy wonder" here yesterday as he hurled the Tribe to a 4 to 2 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics.

Feller was again "Blazing Bob," against the Athletics. The famed fast ball which had been missing from his repertoire once more was the Iowa schoolboy's chief asset. He sent 10 Philadelphia batsmen back to the bench via the strikeout route.

Bob Feller

Issues Three Passes.

The youngster was putting his fast ball where he wanted it and snapping his curve across the corners with regularity. Feller issued only three bases on balls.

The Athletics garnered only seven hits. They scored their first run in the second inning when Dario Lodigiani walked and went to third on Wayne Ambler's single. Lodigiani and Ambler then worked the double steal. The other run was garnered in the fourth when Sam Chapman walked, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on a sacrifice and came home as Feller balked.

Behind 2 to 0 going into the fifth, the Indians knotted the score when Earl Averill homered to score Jeff Heath ahead of himself. Cleveland went ahead on Heath's circuit drive in the sixth and garnered the final counter in the seventh on Frankie Pytlak's single and Feller's double.

Cleveland's eight hits off George Caster were well distributed. No Indian player garnered more than one safety. The only players to go hitless were Lyn Lary and Hal Trosky.

Hemsley Injured.

Rollie Hemsley, scrappy Tribe catcher, was forced to leave the game in the fifth inning. He was struck on the foot an inning earlier by one of Feller's pitches. X-rays were taken last night and revealed only a severe bruise. It is expected Hemsley will be able to return to the lineup within two days.

Despite the victory yesterday Cleveland lost one-half a game in the pennant chase as the New York Yankees took a double-header from St. Louis.

In the second game of the series today Willis Hudlin was to pitch for Cleveland with Lynn Nelson opposing him.

Whitlow Wyatt, Remember Him?

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians winces every time he glances at a Milwaukee box score that contains the name of Whitlow Wyatt.

Wyatt was on the Cleveland pitching staff a year ago, but was turned back to the minors without any strings attached this season. The rangy right-hander has made the Indian management regret the move numerous times. Wyatt hung up his 15th victory of the season last night when he hurled Milwaukee to an easy 10 to 0 triumph over Minneapolis. Pitching runless ball in the band-box Nicolett park is a feat of distinction. The shutout was Wyatt's eighth of the season.

PROSPECT PARK JUNIORS WIN OVER INDEPENDENTS

P. Sturgeon collected a triple and double to star at the plate as the Prospect park Juniors defeated the Independents, 12 to 11, in a softball game at Prospect park yesterday. A six-run rally in the sixth won for the Juniors.

Cabbies, Kegs Battle to Tie

Al Stickler's Relief Pitching Features Contest.

The DeLuxe Cabs and Crestline Kooler Kegs battled to a 4 to 4 tie in a softball game halted at the end of the ninth at Liberty park because of darkness yesterday.

Crestline tallied a run in the first of the eighth to earn a tie with the Cabs in a game attended by over 800 specators.

The visitors tallied three runs in the third, and the Cabs came back with one in the fourth. The Cabs scored three in the sixth to go ahead by a 4 to 3 count.

At Stickler again starred in a relief pitching role for the Cabs after succeeding Ted Frisbee in the sixth. Fleiner led the visitors with three hits, while Forman and Voegl got a pair apiece for the Cabs. The game will be replayed next week.

Callie G., With Cartnal Up, Installed as Favorite in Mansfield Tire Event.

A boiling sun whipped down on a lightning-fast track today as the opening events in the three-day harness speed program featuring the Richland county fair got under way at the Fairground.

The prospects for a record-breaking crowd were encouraging for today's four-race program which headlined the appearance of Callie G., champion three-year-old pacer owned by Frank Callahan of Tiffin.

In Second Event.

The Tiffin pacer was slated to go in the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company 3-year-old pace stake, the second event on the inaugural bill.

Callie G., installed as the favorite, reined by the veteran Gabe Cartnal, won seven out of eight appearances as a two-year-old, and established a world's record for a half-mile oval of 2:06¾.

The Tiffin pacer's chief contenders in this event were expected to by Johnnie Hal, owned by William Rader of Grafton, and Gaiety, a star of O. C. Adleman's Mt. Vernon stable. Johnnie Hal has won three races already this year.

Undefeated in four appearances, Lady Zombelle, driven by 23-year-old Delvin Miller, one of the youngest drivers in the business, stacked up as the favorite in the two-year-old trot in which the Interstate Loan company trophy is at stake, in addition to a $500 purse. The filly is owned by M. N. Haines of York, Pa.

Steeds to Watch.

In the 2:25 $250 News-Journal trot, Astute and Snow Ball of Butler, Pa., and Sweetstake of Ben White's Grand Circuit stable were the steeds to watch. Miss Pittsburg, who was an outstanding colt trotter until injured last year, was expected to be another starter.

Louise Reynolds, formerly owned by R. J. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C., and trained by Will Caton, one-time trainer for the Czar of Russia; Ripley, Bert Hal, Hal B. Direct and Jack the Ripper were included in the classy Office Cafe 2:30 pace, final event on today's card.

Mansfield horses are expected to figure prominently in Thursday's events. For instance, Grace Crispin of the Nail-Dickson stable, with a time of 2:02¼, looks like a good bet in the Evergreen restaurant 2:21 $250 trot, and Mrs. H. P. Peck's Lady Dillon should rate in the Whitey restaurant 2:24 $250 pace.

Hathy and Jackie Grattan of Biery's Butler, Pa., stable and Flo Signal, recently converted from a trot to the pace, are other pacers to bear watching in the 2,24 pace. W. J. Volo, Newark, O., charge, is expected to be Grace Crispin's chief rival in the 2:21 trot.

In the Southern Hotel two-year-old stake race, Gallant Miss, owned by C. M. Provost of Pittsburgh; Dale Win of the Sandusky Sloane hotel stable, and Kity S., a Cleveland filly, are feared.

Lou Ward, owned by R. F. Chaffin of Midland, Pa., who has been going great guns in the Short ship, is among the entries in the Hi-Speed Oil company three-year-old trot.

LONDON, Ont.—(AP)—A sadly depleted American contingent made ready today for the drive down the stretch toward the Canadian amateur golf championship over the rolling hills of the London Hunt and Country club course.

Most of the favorites including Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London were included in the field of 62 which started today's two rounds. Heading the American winners was Ven Savage, the Trans-Mississippi champion from Magna, Utah, who defeated R. A. Patterson of London, 5 and 4.

Other Americans to come through included Dick Lutz, Ashland, O., who eliminated George Hevenor, of Toronto, one up in 19 holes. D. Carmichael of Columbus, O., was beaten on the 22nd hole of the day's longest match by H. R. Pickens, jr., of Montreal. R. C. Garretson of Ashland, O., lost to W. D. Taylor, Montreal, 6 and 5.

New Middleweight Champion Called Another Ketchell

Hostak KO's Fred Steele In Fast Time

Seattle Boy Puts Defending King to Sleep in 1 Minute, 43 Seconds.

SEATTLE—(AP)—Al Hostak, a 22-year-old kid from the Georgetown brewery district of Seattle who would as soon punch you in the nose as shake hands, wore the world's middleweight championship crown today.

Hostak, wielding a murderous left hand, battered down Freddie Steele, the Tacoma, Wash., boy who held the title two years, four times to win in one minute, 43 second of the first round of their scheduled 15 round bout.

$6,000 Astonished.

Some 30,000 fans hardly realized the battle was over when Referee Jack Dempsey counted ten over the glassy-eyed Steele who lay bleeding and battered in the resin. It took Hostak, too, some time to realize he was champion, but when he did he jumped and danced all over the ring.

"I am the happiest guy in the country," cried Hostak. "I saw a hole and let that left go. Boy am I happy."

That's just the way the bout finished. Al spotted an opening through Steele's guard, let fly with a left cross to the jaw, and Steele went down in a heap. He was so far gone he didn't know what to do and got right up groggy and weaving. He was an easy mark the rest of the way.

Hostak likes to fight. He has had 59 battles and lost but one. That was to Jimmy Best of Tacoma when he was a welterweight. Later he got even with Jimmy. He has never been knocked off his feet.

Like Ketchell.

Dempsey called Hostak "the nearest thing to Stanley Ketchell we ever have had in the fight arena. He's one of the greatest hitters I ever saw in my life."

Steele will get between $30,000 and $35,000 as his share of the gate receipts, which were nearly $90,000. Hostak will get 12½ per cent of the receipts after the taxes have been deducted.

Old Barney's Just Like Kid On Vacation

Life Started for Him Night He Lost Title.

By HENRY McLEMORE

GROSSINGER LAKE, N. J.—(U.P.)—Life really began for Barney Ross the night Henry Armstrong nearly beat it out of him. He told me this yesterday here at the resort where he trained for most of his fights. He's back now to relax and play. For the first time in 10 years he's just himself.

Talking to Barney was like talking to a kid on the first day of his vacation from school. He felt so good and was so happy that it showed in his eyes, in his walk, in his talk.

He doesn't mind talking about the Armstrong fight, even though it took away his title and marked the end of his fighting days.

"He's a swell fighter, that Armstrong," Barney said. "And a clean and gracious one, too. I knew I was finished after the second round, that I didn't have a chance. When I went out for the third I knew I was going out there to get the daylights beat out of me, and after the fifth I remember praying and asking the Lord to let me last the full fifteen. I didn't want to finish my last fight on the floor."

I wanted to ask Barney more about that fight, but just then the waiter came around with a menu and Barney set to work ordering a lunch that would have caused any thoughtful and conscientious dietician to go into a decline.

"Give me three pineapple fritters with lots of syrup for a starter," Barney said. "Then I'll have some of that chocolate cream cake and a double order of ice cream."

* * *

THE waiter suggested something more substantial—some vegetables and that sort of thing.

"You know I don't want any of that stuff," Barney said. "That's all I could eat for 10 years. Now I'm trying to make up for all the sweets I couldn't have when I was a fighter."

A few more weeks of loafing and Barney moves to New York to enter his father-in-law's retail dress business.

He doesn't, to use his own words, "know a shirtwaist from a kimono," but he is going to learn. "I didn't know anything about boxing when I started, but I learned," he said.

Pretty smart fellow, Ross. There are not many fighters who leave the game with a spotless record, all their brains, financial security, and a lovely wife, but Barney did.

David Beaned Goliath, Runyan Beat Snead, So Graham Sees Hope For Pint-Sized Athletes

By DILLON GRAHAM

NEW YORK—(AP)—All of us little runts who swing a golf club owe a vote of thanks to Paul Runyan.

He has been our Dr. Freud. He has enabled us to shed our thick cloak of inferiority complex.

He's shown that the pitch is mightier than the sock.

Not since David conked Goliath on the brow has such a triumph been scored for the little man as Runyan tallied when he walloped Slamming Sammy Snead a few days ago in the Professional Golfers' championship.

Snead, a biffer who is as long and straighter than Jimmy Thomson, outdrove "Little Poison" as much as 50 and 60 yards as the galleryites "oh'd" and "ah'd" and felt sorry for Paul. But Paul refused to be abashed. He rifled his spoon shots and his long irons right up to the pin and Sam had to look at a ball nestling close to the cup while he hit his second. Sam won only one hole during the championship round as Runyan triumphed 8-and-7.

If the case histories of the country's many other pint-sized linksters are similar to mine they are dotted with embarrassing moments. Particularly first tee jitters.

Many are the times I've stepped up to the tee and hit a high lob that sailed down the fairway all of 150 yards. I've had to retire to the tune of loud snickers from the gals around the tee while some big buffoon, after giving me a soul-searing sneer, blasted a 250-yard drive.

But I won't be pestered by that inferiority complex any more. Henceforth, I shall smile sweetly, and confidently, and say: "Remember Runyan. His pitches beat Snead's drives."

I am happy to report that Runyan and I are alike in many ways.

We're both around 5 feet 7 inches (when we stand up straight and stretch).

We're both blonds.

We both have a body sway in our swing. (However, I might explain that Runyan has his sway timed so nicely that he gets into the ball perfectly. I would prefer to say no more about the after effects of my sway.)

We're both Southerners. (Remember, Bob Jones was a Southerner who could make a golf ball yodel.)

We're both married—to brunettes.

I take pride in being the discoverer of Runyan. I happened to cover the first important tournament that he won. That was the North and South Open at Pinehurst, N. C., in 1930. Maybe I am stretching a point in claiming to be his discoverer, but I sang the sport-page song of his debut among the winners.

Not only is Paul the match-play king of the professionals but he has demonstrated that size means nothing in another branch of art. He is the rhumba king of the touring pros.

CERTAIN TO WIN PLACE ON ALL-OHIO GRID CLUB

CLEVELAND—(AP)—You can't keep Lou Nemec, the big 210-pound center from Bellaire and late of Ohio Northern, off the Ohio college all-star team which battles the Cleveland Rams here Sept. 2. With less than two weeks to go in the Cleveland News-American Legion club poll, Nemec's 59,175 vote total today was far more than that of any candidate.

CHOTTEAU SHEDS 33 POUNDS IN RECORD SWIM

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Paul Chotteau, concert violinist and athlete, was recovering slowly today from an epic swim in which he broke Pacific ocean records for distance and time in the water.

Taken from the water while half-unconscious, the Frenchman had negotiated 46 miles from Santa Barbara Island to a point 4½ miles from the Malibu pier, and had been swimming for 44 hours and 51 minutes. He lost 34 pounds while in the water.

EDDIE SIMMS FINED PURSE, SUSPENDED

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Eddie Simms, Cleveland heavyweight, today was fined the amount of his purse and suspended six months by the state athletic commission as the result of his bout with Phil Brubaker at Oakland, July 12, stopped in the seventh round when Referee Billy Burke said he believed Simms was not trying.

Cardinal Bosses Made Him Pop-off Guy, Says Diz Dean

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Petey Sarron, one of the grandest little fighters you ever saw, is out of the hospital and playing golf—he'll be back in the ring soon . . . Tony Galento still doing all right, thank goodness (and it's too bad we can't say the same for the Giants) . . . You ought to read that story by Dizzy Dean in this week's Lib. . . . Diz says he never wanted to be a pop-off guy but the Card bosses made him and he couldn't say no because he was afraid they would chase him back to the Arkansas cotton fields.

You now can get three to one here that Armstrong treats Ambers just like he has been treating everybody else . . . What's become of Hymie Caplin and Solly Krieger? . . . In an exhibition game the other night between Brooklyn and Albany, a fan said: "Mr. Ruth, I have never seen you sock one." . . . "We'll attend to that right now," responded the Babe and durned if he didn't park one on his next time up . . . Incidentally, the three exhibitions the Dodgers have played since Ruth joined up have drawn 33,724 fans.

Down at Winston-Salem, N. C., everybody is giving three long ones and ringing the fire bells . . . For the first time in 20 years they've got a baseball owner (Alvin Crowder) who can recognize a baseball wizard in his own town. . . . He signed up Charlie Clancy (the shrewdest old duck we've run across in 25 years of baseball reporting) to manage his twins in the Piedmont league and the rest of the clubs had better look out.

* * *

GALENTO is out of the ring for the rest of the year, anyway. . . . Bill Terry ought to shoot some trusty south, check up on Burgess Whitehead and get the fellow back up here . . . New York baseball writers have made the Giants a 6 to 5 choice to win. . . . Also the big town sports writers can't get over the astounding change in Helen Wills Moody who came back from Wimbledon Monday. . . . She not only answered questions like a trouper, but actually smiled for the photogs.

Best looking heavyweight prospect right now is Gunnar Barlund of Finland. . . . Just to show you how times have changed, Joe Louis may be invited to show in Birmingham this fall. . . . SELLING DELUGE BRINGS LOSSES INTO EXCHANGE

List Crumbles in Worst Reaction Since Start of Bull Market.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Stock prices broke $1 to more than $3 a share today in selling movement which was accelerated by sending of a wrong quotation on the ticker and by unconfirmed rumors of serious developments in the Japanese-Russian dispute.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market broke badly today under a deluge of selling that swamped the high-speed ticker and brought losses of 1 to more than 4 points. It was the worst reaction since the spectacular bull market got underway on June 20.

Wave after wave of liquidation pushed the ticker 7 minutes behind, forcing use of the stock exchange's system of "flash" prices from the floor.

All sections of the list crumbled under the sudden influx of offerings, which followed a mild rally in the first few minutes of trading. Spreads of a point or more on the downside were noted in several of the higher priced specialties.

There was little in the news to account for the break, as Wall street had been cheered by yesterday's action of U. S. Steel corp. in declaring the regular preferred dividend despite the large deficit suffered in the first half.

Chief factor was the heavy profit-taking by traders who felt the market was long overdue for a real correctional movement. Many stop-loss orders were uncovered as the list sagged, accelerating the broad decline.

Chemicals, rubbers, steels, rails, motors and blue-chips suffered the largest losses. Dupont, Chrysler and Philip Morris each tumbled more than 4 points before support was encountered.

600 TURN OUT FOR BOND RALLY

Enthusiastic Audience Hears of City School Needs at P. T. A. Gathering.

The Mansfield school board's $550,000 bond issue for school building purposes was described last night to approximately 600 persons at a Senior high school P. T. A. rally at North Lake park.

It was the second consecutive enthusiastic rally for the bond issue, 900 persons having attended a Newman school meeting Monday night at Liberty park.

Speakers last night were Dr John S Hattery and H. W. Arlin, school board members, and Supt. W L Miller. The Senior high school band played during the rally.

The Hedges P. T. A. will conduct a rally at 7.30 p. m today at the school building, with Arlin, Miller and Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the First Lutheran church, scheduled to speak on the bond issue and school building program.

School officials consider the Hedges rally one of the vital meetings of the campaign since there has been some opposition to the building plan in that section.

The school board had been informed today of the unanimous endorsement of the building program by the Mansfield Colored Citizens league J W Pearson is president of the organization and Mrs R D Lumpkin is secretary.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The attorney general's office reported today that Charles Sawyer's campaign manager probably would be called before a special grand jury in connection with complaints that state civil service employes were asked to contribute to Sawyer's campaign fund.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The Franklin county special grand jury called more witnesses from three state departments today as it went into the final stages of investigating reported solicitation of campaign contributions from civil service workers.

Seven witnesses from the welfare department, gasoline tax division and paint shop of the highway department, were called to testify during yesterday's session.

At the same time Will P. Stephenson, assistant attorney general, revealed that upon the court's interpretation of the word "willful" rests the cases against 18 minions of Governor Davey already under indictment for violating the civil service laws.

Stephenson implied that if the court defines "willful" as meaning that the offender had knowledge that the persons solicited were protected workers, the case will be much easier. If it is held otherwise, he indicated the defendants would probably be acquitted.

FAIR DIRECTOR AT SHELBY QUITS

Wrangle Over Location of '38 Street Attraction Brings Officer's Resignation.

SHELBY — "Disgusted" at a wrangle over the closing of Main street for the Shelby street fair in September, C. L. Beal, a director of the Shelby Community fair board for the past three years, submitted his resignation at a directors' meeting last night. The board refused to accept the resignation.

Beal said he would have no part in the board's activities "if there is going to be a fight over where it will be held."

The dispute began, it was reported, with a complaint of Ernest Brunk, filling station operator, who said the roping off of Main street blocked traffic from his station on Gamble street and caused him to lose business during fair week.

Brunk was reported to have obtained the signatures of 16 merchants who are opposed to closing Main street for the exposition. He said he would submit a petition bearing the signatures to city council Monday night.

Brunk and Max Oxman, another station operator, were said to have threatened an injunction action against the fair board last year over the street closing issue.

GAS STATIONS ASK FOR BAN ON 'GIFT AWARDS'

Petition Submitted to Council Seeks to Outlaw Lotteries of All Types.

The Independent Gasoline Dealers association of Richland county today asked city council to prohibit "gift awards" by amending the city's gambling ordinance.

A petition bearing the signatures of 45 operators seeks to outlaw the award for any type of business in the future. A gift award plan was abandoned by a number of gasoline dealers a month ago.

The petition asks council to pass the necessary legislation that will prohibit lotteries within the municipality and make it unlawful for any person to participate in a gift or award by chance or to give or receive such an award in connection with any wholesale or retail business including theaters and clubs.

Would Cover All Lotteries.

The petition further asks that "any persons who shall become the possessor, custodian or depository of any pools, lottery, scheme of chance, money, property or thing of value, in any manner wagered or bet upon any result or event or any kind of apparatus, device sheets, slips, tickets or books of any kind, designed or used for gambling, or buying or selling any such pools, lottery or scheme of chance, or making any such wagers or bets, shall be fined not more than $50 for the first offense and not more than $500 for each successive offense."

W. D. Clause, a director of the association, said today that the "gift award" which had swept the nation and in which Mansfield filling station operators had participated in making weekly cash awards up to $200 for persons holding lucky numbers on tickets, was "agreeably settled" here and the idea abandoned nearly a month ago.

He explained that the petition had been drafted to "protect against any future participation in such activities by Mansfield merchants."

At this meeting Prof. R. C. Hunter of the university will present a one-act play. Also scheduled to speak at one of the meetings is George Gauthier, head football coach at the university.

Arrangements for the picnic were in charge of a committee made up of W. C. Mansfield, Mrs. F. A. Hoffman, David E. Hughes, Miss Ruth Leighley, V. D. Coe, Rev. E. G. Corwin and Mrs. V. D. Coe. No date was set for next year's picnic.

'BOOS HELP ME,' DAVEY ASSERTS

'You're Making Me Votes,' Governor Tells Jeering Crowd at Portsmouth.

(By Associated Press)

An unprecedented demonstration of booing, which interrupted and prolonged a speech in Portsmouth, was regarded as political capital today by Gov. Martin L. Davey as he moved into Ironton.

Meanwhile, headquarters for Charles Sawyer, who also seeks the Democratic nomination for governor, announced that if any state civil service employes were solicited for Sawyer campaign contributions, "it was nothing more than coincidence."

"You booers are making more votes for Davey that you ever dreamed of," the governor told his antagonists in a crowd estimated by state highway patrolmen at more than 5,000 persons who crowded into Portsmouth's public square last night. "Why listen, I'll carry this county ten to one now."

Patrolmen and members of the governor's party said the booing was the most vociferous Davey had encountered in the current campaign. Much of it came from a small group which included sympathizers of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

When the booers were not booing, a large part of the crowd was cheering and applauding the governor's attacks on Lewis, and the noise caused him to take up an hour and 15 minutes with a speech which otherwise would have consumed a half-hour.

He asked how many wanted to see Lewis elected governor. Up went the hands of many, but Davey received a larger response when he inquired if they wanted him re-elected.

He accused Lewis of trying to ruin Portsmouth by sending communists to operate a strike at the Selby Shoe company in the city.

In Columbus, Hugh L. Nichols, Sawyer's campaign manager, moved to counteract the affidavits of two state civil service employes who said they received letters from Nichols requesting campaign contributions.

Eighteen persons identified with Governor Davey's administration were indicted for soliciting or receiving political contributions from civil service workers.

Nichols said the letters were sent to a random list of Democrats which he did not see.

"No state employe in the classified service was knowingly included," he asserted.

Sawyer, carrying his campaign into Summit county, accused Davey's administration of loading the division of aid for the aged payroll with "thousands of unnecessary political campaign appointees." He said that due to this, the division had to borrow $800,000.

He reiterated that state employes would not be "kicked out of their jobs," in event of his election and said many "want to be free from their slavery" under the Davey administration.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

REFORESTATION

I WALKED through the woods on the farm we rent, to estimate how completely the lumberman had done his job of devastation. It seemed logs had been cut with little care as to how many other straight young trees were sacrificed. And after the carnage was completed, one night a heavy storm of ice and sleet had broken down the tops of many of these tall, fine trees, or torn them out of root.

It is a sad and heartless sight, yet I can see how, with plantings of seed walnuts, acorns from white and red oak trees, and locust beans, a fine selection of the most desirable forest trees could be obtained.

Although I do not own the land, I feel I would like to gather these forest seeds and plant them all about the denuded spaces, so that tender, shade-loving wild flowers may bloom there again, . . . so that other folks beside myself could enjoy the cool air beneath them, admire the beauty, and rationally cut and use the crop of timber.

The wild folk too would seek shelter here. . . . the quail, the rabbit, the hooting night owl. Here the frisking squirrel could seek his food, the chipmunk burrow beneath the spreading roots; the sly old coon might climb the tallest trees and find safety in their lofty crotches; tree frogs might rest in summer wind and shade upon the gray-green bark.

Here, in autumn, would come happy children, to make a pathless course among the fallen leaves and gather nuts from "brown October's woods."

This forest on a rented farm is far too useful to let a herd of cattle destroy its tender shoots . . . much too beautiful and full of future promise to have it cast in fallow. The trees in open fields and woods add softness and color to our landscape that is wealth beyond our thought and knowledge.

'BIG JOHN' AND 'LITTLE JOHN' WERE FINE FRIENDS UNTIL—

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO — They called him "Little John." Not in fun because he was so large. But to distinguish him from "Big John." It was the natural way since both bore the name of John Smoter.

A rare name, one you seldom run across. So, it was quite a surprise when the great hulk of a man shouldered into John Smoter's cobbler shop one day last spring and slapped down a pair of worn brogans.

"Fix 'em up—if you can," he boomed, "I'll call for 'em. My name's John Smoter."

* * *

The two fell to talking over the coincidence. They got a great kick out of greeting each other after that:

"Hello John Smoter."

"Hello John Smoter."

It was a joke and through it they became friends and next, pals. Big John in his expansive, hearty way drew a sort of hero worship from his stoop shouldered, wizened little namesake that some little men accord bigger stronger ones.

He was all that Little John was not. And Little John wanted to be big and strong. Once he had been swindled out of $2,000. Another time robbers got $150 and beat him cruelly. They might come back. Big John could handle them and now Big John was his friend.

So he suggested they live together. Unrelated, both were alone in the world and it would be comfortable having the husky mill hand at his elbow.

* * *

Big John thought it was a grand idea and he made Little John's bachelor quarters a cheery place. He liked life and the fun to be had. He drew out his little friend and the oddly assorted pair became a familiar sight in the neighborhood.

Little John was no longer the shy, gnome-like recluse. He even started filling out what with the juicy steaks and rich meals that Big John liked so well. Little John did the buying and cooking.

"We're a great pair," the barrel chested one would roar at the bar of a neighborhood tavern as he clamped one huge fist over the puny shoulder of his companion and banged the other on the mahogany. Little John beamed.

"Only John Smoter is any match for a John Smoter. And here we be. Who can beat a team like that?"

Those at the bar, looking at bearish Big John Smoter, nodded. Big John would laugh at his joke and the rest guffawed politely. Even Little John. It was so foolish, just to think of him an equal of Big John—a teammate.

* * *

So Big John would swagger out and Little John at a trot behind, lingering just long enough to pay the bill. He didn't care. He didn't even realize—not at first. But came a time when it began to rankle. Little John complained to shopkeepers that Big John wasn't holding up his end.

"Don't you think he should?" Little John said plaintively.

With his money about gone Little John brought a showdown, at last. They found them both sprawled on the floor each gripping a revolver. There were four bullet holes in Little John's bory. There were two in Big John's, but both of those were through the heart. Big John was just as dead as Little John.

Big John's jesting had come true. One John Smoter had made a good match for another.

JAPANESE OPEN TWO-WAY DRIVE ON HANKOW

Nippon Maneuvers Campaign So Yangtse Flood Won't Defeat Efforts.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Japanese troops started a two-point drive toward Hankow from Kiukiang today and planned it so that not even new floods along the Yangtse river would hold them back.

From Kiukiang, which the Japanese occupied yesterday, one Japanese column struck out directly westward along the Yangtse, aiming at Tienkiaychen, 45 miles away and 90 miles from Hankow, the Chinese provisional capital.

A second column headed southward toward Nanchang, China's air headquarters, which the Japanese hoped to take before sweeping northward in a flanking movement.

In the path of the column were strong forces of Chinese retreating toward Kuling, the former summer capital where many foreigners are vacationing.

Good Defense Point.

Standing on a high bluff at the tip of Lake Poyang, Kuling would be an excellent point for the Chinese to make a stand, foreign military men said. Fighting in the vicinity was expected soon, although the Japanese did not indicate they would attack the town.

The foreigners at Kuling made preparations to hold out during a siege. They informed their embassies they were remaining and planned to ask the Chinese to evacuate foreign-controlled property so that they might set up a refugee center which would be free from attack.

Foreign military experts predicted that the next major battle would take place at Tienkiaychen, where the Yangtse is at its narrowest point, and where the Chinese were understood to be concentrating for a stand.

Japanese warships attempted to move up the Yangtse toward Tienkiaychen, but were having difficulty because the river was heavily mined. The ships shelled advance positions along the shores, however.

REVERSES COURT IN DAMAGE SUIT

State Tribunal Awards Mansfielder $2,125 in Action Against Insurance Firm.

The Ohio supreme court today reversed Fifth district appellate court verdict and awarded Miss Helen Beer of near Mansfield a judgment for $2,125 personal damages for injuries she suffered in a traffic accident four years ago in Mansfield.

Miss Beer, who was injured in a car driven by her brother, Wilbur G. Beer, Mansfield, won a judgment against the Buckeye Union Casualty company, Columbus, after her brother failed to pay her damages.

Counsel for Miss Beer took the case to the Supreme court after Richland county common pleas court ruled against her in a suit against the insurance company and the lower court was upheld by the appeals courts.

The insurance company was held liable by the supreme court since it had issued a liability policy to the brother. Miss Beer, a music teacher, first was awarded a judgment against her brother.

The suits, which had been pending in county, district and state courts for more than three years, resulted from an accident March 8, 1934, on Lexington avenue.

PLUNGE ENDS 'DEATH WAIT'

Youth Perched 11 Hours on Hotel Ledge Dives While 10,000 Watch.

terday he had been perched on the ledge, 18 inches wide, 17 floors above the 55th street intersection of Fifth avenue, one of the busiest and wealthiest mercantile streets in the world.

Plunge Costs Thousands.

For 11 hours he tied up traffic, paralyzed the business of the fashionable shops below, engaged the attention of hundreds of policemen, disrupted the routine of the old ultra-conservative Hotel Gotham. His death cost the merchants $100,000, the city of New York $30 000, the hotel, several thousand.

On July 11, 1937, he cut his throat with a razor blade Taken to a hospital, he was saved by surgeons. Eight days ago he climbed up on the ledge of a bridge at Hampton Bays, Long Island, but a policeman happened by and pulled him down

Ward, the son of the American Express company agent at Southampton, N. Y., had had since his adolescence a conviction of personal inferiority which gave him the viewpoint that no effort was worthwhile, that life was not worth living. He was intelligent, well-mannered, but his depressive mania made him seem "strange" and a year ago he lost his job as teller in the Southampton bank.

Neighbors of the family, the Patrick A Valentines, gave him a job tutoring their children The changed environment did not improve his outlook, and, after his two attempts at suicide, he was placed in the Central Islip hospital for the insane He was released last month and his depressive mania was said to have been "arrested." To complete the cure, Valentine and his wife took him and his sister, Mrs. Catherine Bull, on an outing to Chicago.

Monday night they returned and spent the night at the Hotel Gotham where the Valentines maintain a town apartment Yesterday morning, the four of them were chatting in the Valentine living room A remark was passed by Mrs. Bull that was so trivial that no one remembered it But it was not trivial to Ward Without a word, he rushed to the window and stepped out

Father John McCarthy a member of the staff of St Patrick's cathedral, volunteered his services He leaned out the window, said

"What is your religion, young man?"

"I don't know—Presbyterian, I guess '

Father McCarthy spoke long and earnestly on God s commandments against self destruction. He pointed out that he would be entering an unknown world after having committed a grievous sin. It made no impression.

At last they sent for Patrolman Charles Glasgow, a young man with a reputation for eloquence and charm He took off his coat, his cap his badge, his gun—everything that marked him as a policeman—leaned out the window, and cried

'Look at me man' Have I ever done anything to you? Then why do you want to ruin me I'm the clerk of this hotel I have a wife and three children. If you jump, people will say its my fault and I'll lose my job. Then what'll happen to my children? Come on in, man, and let's talk it over"

Ward seemed touched by these honeyed words He explained sadly that he had no wish to harm anyone, that he couldn't make up his mind

"Look at all those people down there" he said. "I can't disappoint them '

Others Shed Tears.

Glasgow talked on and on and though he did not overpower Ward with his eloquence, he did those who were in the room behind him Deputy Mayor Henry Curran, tears in his eyes, exclaimed that he had never seen such excellent police work Ward accepted cigarets, water, and coffee—specifying that he wanted a lot of cream in it—from Glasgow, favored him with sad smiles and sympathetic words But beyond that he wouldn't go

The technicians had at last devised a scheme On the sidewalk below they stretched out a cargo net borrowed from a steamship and attached its side to ropes that had been surreptitiously lowered from the floor below Ward's ledge.

At the 16th floor one side of the net was made fast to the side of the building. To the other side were attached ropes lowered from the 18th floor, one floor above Ward The plan was to pull up the net and trap Ward between it and the building. Glasgow was busily talking to him, distracting him A fireman and two policemen had been lowered in Bosun's chairs from the 19th floor, ready to grasp the net when it was pulled within reach. Two seconds more and the life of the spychopath who was determined to kill himself would have been saved—for a time Ward glanced down, saw the net

"I've made up my mind," he said.

Then he dived

R. B. GARDNER

MRS. WALTER L. BECKLEY

Mansfield will be conspicious in the activities of the Ohio department of the American Legion, and its auxiliary during the next year as the result of the election of two Mansfielders to state offices yesterday at the Legion convention in Cincinnati. R B "Mud" Gardner, one of the organizers of McVey Post, a World war flier and an officer in the Reserve Air corps, was elected vice commander of the state, and Mrs. Walter L Beckley, South Diamond street, was chosen state president of the Legion Auxiliary.

TWO MANSFIELDERS ELECTED AS OHIO LEGION CONVENTION ENDS

McVey post of the American legion will be well represented in state legion affairs next year with the election yesterday of two Mansfielders to important posts on the department staff

R B "Mud" Gardner retiring commander of the Fifth district, was elected department vice commander, and Mrs W L Beckley will head the Legion auxiliary of the state as its president Both were unopposed in the elections

Eli Jensen, Springfield won over Capt. J. W. Bowen, Hillsboro, in a hotly contested race for department commander. Jensen, business manager of Wittenberg college, campaigned as a "conservative," while Bowen, executive of a telephone company, urged the Ohio department to remain in accord with the national Legion program of "Americanism"

The Fifth district, of which Mansfield is a part, endorsed the candidacy of Bowen at its recent convention here, and late last week petitions circulated at the McVey post home and signed by a number of Legionnaires, urged the delegates from the post to vote for Bowen The seven delegates, appointed by Commander L A Cook, however, voted for Jensen, according to Associated Press dispatches

One resolution adopted at the convention condemned the German-American Bund, charging that it "corrupted youth undermined government and militated against national defense" The state executive committee was authorized to spend $10.000 to gather information in combatting such groups in Ohio

Another resolution adopted urged the national convention to appoint a committee for studying "the lives, writings, and acts of great Americans"

Other resolutions included·

Memorialization of congress to provide for a commercial airship building program.

Agitation to raise to 19 years the age limit under which state welfare agencies may assist children and youths

Akron was selected as the 1939 convention city, and Milo Warner, Toledo, was unanimously endorsed as the department's choice for national commander at the national convention in Los Angeles, in September

Other state officers elected for the year were James R. Favret, Cincinnati, national executive committeman from Ohio, Paul Gnau, Canton, treasurer; Edward Lee Findlay, alternate national committeeman, and Lewis P Williams Shaker Heights, chaplain

On Mrs Beckley's staff will be Mrs Linn Perry, Akron, vice president, Mrs Leo E. Moore, Zanesville, secretary and Mrs J. Ernest Giffin, Bellaire, treasurer.

SCHOOLS FACE SPACE PROBLEM

Fall Opening May Be Postponed If New Addition Is Not Completed.

SHELBY—With the $80.000 addition to Shelby high school not expected to be completed until late in September, school officials today were faced with the problem of classroom space for the high school enrollment of 800 students for the opening of the school term Sept. 6.

Although school officials did not expect the new addition to be finished for the opening of the fall term Supt C G Keck today disclosed that unless the addition could be completed by Sept 13, no postponement of the opening would be made However if not completed by that date, school would be postponed one week, Keck said.

If necessary, Keck explained, class room space could be made from the auditorium and in extra rooms at Central grade school until the addition would be available A number of new class rooms will also be completed by this fall in the present building.

Approximately 800 students are registered for this fall, Keck announced, including 300 rural students from Plymouth, Sharon and Jackson townships that will be transported to the Shelby schools in buses

Other changes will include the removal of the seventh and eighth grades from the grade schools to the high school building A new subject, industrial arts, will be added to the school curriculum this year, Keck said Addition changes will be made before the fall school term.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1938.

People are usually willing to hear both sides of a question in which they are not particularly interested.

The idea seems to be growing that the state should have no truck with a trucking concern that has no truck.

News item: "With its new fast presses, the treasury department could print money at the rate of $136,250 in 25 seconds"—indicating that the New Dealers are planning ahead.

Propose Medical Care 'For All.'

ANNUAL expenditure of $850,000,000 of public funds to finance a ten-year national health program is the ambitious project now being formulated for presentation at the next session of congress.

The plan, as proposed, would be for the federal government to match state and community money on a 50-50 basis, with the idea of eventually reaching the goal of "medical care for all."

The handicap of poverty, in the matter of securing medical attention and hospital care when needed, has long been recognized and community obligation to employ a physician to care for charity cases has been accepted for many years—although indigent patients have not had available the special nursing sometimes regarded as essential to recovery from serious illness or following an operation.

There has also been some experimenting with insurance plans as a means of financing medical care and hospitalization, but these have not attained sufficient broadness in scope to extend medical care to everyone, regardless of ability to pay.

Medical opinion differs greatly on this subject, although a considerable majority is apparently on the side of continuance of the system of individual employment of physicians on the fee basis, with city, township or county making allowances for care of charity patients.

Proponents of the plan contend that the time of many physicians is only partially occupied and this leisure could be used in caring for indigent patients who need attention but cannot pay for it.

Under a perfect system, wherein equality of opportunity was matched with equality of ability and of willingness to work and earn, there would undoubtedly be a practicable plan through which everybody would have access to adequate medical, surgical and hospital care, just as everybody would have sufficient food, clothing, housing, and other necessities and luxuries that contribute to comfortable living.

Whether the present generation is capable of working out and putting into effect a plan that will equalize opportunities for medical attention and hospitalization remains to be demonstrated.

Wars to Stop Wars.

SAYS Senator Norris of Nebraska, the only living United States senator who voted against American entrance into the World war, and whose essential pacifism may be taken for granted.

> "Although I could never favor voting to put this country to war again on a foreign field, yet 20 or 30 years from now, when a younger generation of Americans is fighting a world union of fascist nations, resisting a fascist wave of aggression against us, those Americans of that day may wish we had defeated fascism in its infancy."

The danger foreseen by the senator seems so real that every believer in democracy must be concerned with ways to prevent it. There might be a powerful fascist league making deliberate war on human freedom and our humane way of life, and it might be done in less time than twenty or thirty years.

To beat fascism, the totalitarian nations must be persuaded that political freedom is the better way. They will be persuaded by evidence rather than by force. The best evidence is a demonstration of prosperity and contentment in the democratic nations. With the world as it is, there must be strong defense combined with a strong will to peace.

Rising Tide of Business.

THE ebbing tide of business, according to evidence on all sides, has definitely turned. It is particularly noticeable in the industrial communities, which were harder hit than others by the latest slump. The most convincing proof is growing re-employment. Steel, textiles, shoes, glass, automobiles and accessories, building, all show it. There is no rush back to work, but a steady trickle almost everywhere. It is the first upward turn in nearly a year.

This is especially convincing because June and July are usually months of business decline. When activity can rise against normal summer stagnation, and in the face of a congressional election involving issues that businessmen generally have been viewing with alarm, there must be some force at work more powerful than weather, politics and business precedent combined.

Shame Felt In Tokio.

THE JAPANESE people are said to feel "shamed" by their loss of the Olympic games for 1940, even though that loss is voluntary. The real shame, however, is in the procedure that led up to such action.

It was the murderous attack on the Chinese people that shamed Japan, and is shaming it more and more, so that it has lost the friendship of nearly all the world, and many nations would have kept away from Tokio if the games were held there.

The war-makers, perhaps, do not see this. But democratic nations understand it. Militarism and Nazism kill the very spirit of sport, which is free competition in deeds of honor and personal prowess. Sportsmanship demands fair play and equal opportunity for individuals, without regard to race, creed or politics.

"Age brings greater tolerance," remarked the man across the table, "and I'm beginning to think that the other fellow doesn't realize that he's wrong."

Vermont now comes forth with a balanced budget. That state can be odd in more different ways!

Joe Louis seems to have an idea that, in prizefighting, a two-minute work year is about right.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — American importers of German goods have discovered a way to duck treasury regulations intended to counteract German subsidies. Moreover, the treasury hasn't yet found a way to block it.

Two years ago Germany was subsidizing its exports to the United States with such carefree abandon that a mile high tariff wall was put up against it. Here is how that business worked:

Germany paid interest on its extensive debts to U. S. investors, half in free currency and half in script to be redeemed at some indefinite future date. In turn, the German Conversion bank offered to buy up this script at half value. That, together with the 50 per cent paid in cash, gave Americans 75 per cent of the cash value of their interest coupons. They were glad to get even 75 per cent, such was the uncertainty.

Next step was for the German government to use this 25 per cent "profit" on the deal to help exporters finance foreign sales. It was all done under strict regulation and the export bounty was allowed only to exporters of German goods which were having tough competition on world markets.

* * *

How It Worked.

IT WAS a neat way of making American holders of German bonds pay for a subsidy on German exports to the U. S. For example:

An American cotton exporter would ship cotton to Germany. He would be paid in blocked marks. A German exporter would give him dollars for the marks and send him on his way rejoicing. The German exporter then would go to the German Conversion bank and explain that he could buy German cameras or tableware to sell in America if given a subsidy to help him match American prices.

If he had a nice clean Aryan face and the deal promised to bring much needed foreign exchange to Germany, he would be given the subsidy and so could buy German goods to ship to the U. S.

It worked so well that in no time American manufacturers began protesting at such competition and the treasury took steps. The attorney general upheld a treasury plan to impose a tariff to offset these subsidies. It ranged from 22½ per cent on tableware to 45 per cent on cameras and 56 per cent on surgical instruments.

* * *

Variation on Theme.

THAT put a damper on the trade, which was restricted enough in any event.

But later the treasury ruled that Americans selling their own goods in Germany could use the proceeds to buy German goods for import into the U. S., for resale here, without having to pay the special tariff. That has developed lately into something interesting.

A person wanting to import goods from Germany simply buys cotton in America. Thus he owns it "on his own account." Then he ships it to Germany. German buyers are allowed to pay higher than the world price for the cotton to "compensate" the American shipper for the trouble of dealing under German trade restrictions.

This special profit on cotton is limited to 33⅓ per cent. But while called a profit, it acts the same as a subsidy because the same amount of cotton is converted into the same amount of German goods as when the direct subsidy was paid. The difference is that the goods bought in Germany under this plan don't have to pay special U. S. duties.

And how can the treasury complain if Germany chooses to pay a premium on American raw materials?

Senate Quiz Boosts 'Young Bob'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Senator Robert M. ("Young Bob") La Follette was an outstanding lawmaker long before he launched his still-pending civil liberties investigation in Washington. Nevertheless that quiz, as he is conducting it, certainly is enhancing his reputation as a competent public man.

Of course it is an inquiry which conservatives emphatically dislike, but I surmise that many more folk approve of it than there are of those in the contrary class.

For thoroughness it would be hard to beat, anyway.

* * *

IN ANOTHER DAY.

About a decade ago the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh proposed a congressional investigation of the country's utilities, which, up to that time, had had things pretty much all their own way.

The utilities realized that they could not prevent the investigation, but they did object strenuously to a congressional one, feeling sure that Senator Walsh would dominate it, causing them unlimited grief. Therefore, they suggested turning the thing over to the Federal Trade commission, reckoning that they had that body under their thumb. Senator Walsh thought so, too, and fought the scheme "all over the lot."

But the utilities beat him. The FTC got the investigation.

* * *

LA FOLLETTE'S OBJECTIVE.

It was a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire."

The job of bossing the inquiry was assigned to Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch. Judge McCulloch never had been known as a vehement anti-utility-ite, but the fashion in which he went after the power interests was a "caution to snakes." What he gave them was publicity plus.

The utilities have been on the jump ever since.

The civil liberties quiz has been along the same line. "Young Bob's" obvious aim has been to uncover Big Business' methods of influencing popular opinion—through the press, through educational channels, through the subsidizing of certain "columnists," through the organization of local vigilante-ism and through control of local officialdom.

It does not exactly reveal illegalities; its purpose rather is to expose the unethical—if so.

* * *

LA FOLLETTE'S METHOD.

And, largely, "Young Bob's" system is to get his evidence, not in the form of accusations, but in the form of admissions from agents of the very interests he is attacking—or investigating, although "attacking" really is the word.

This was just what Judge McCulloch did.

If "Young Bob" succeeds, he still probably will not have disclosed conditions to prosecute, but conditions to legislate against—and THEN to prosecute.

* * *

HIS TRAINING.

But what I intended to analyze was the background of "Young Bob."

We are in the habit of speaking of the employment, by a national legislator, in a secretarial capacity, of one of his relatives, as nepotism.

I never thought of it so. A senator or representative is not supposed to stuff up the government with a lot of his own relatives as appointees, but I think he is entitled to choose, as his personal secretary, anyone he thinks he best can trust, from the standpoint of sympathy; efficiency and understanding of conditions at home.

"Young Bob" for years was the secretary of his father, the late "Old Bob" La Follette.

An interview with "Young Bob" was as good as an interview with "Old Bob."

* * *

HAS BACKGROUND.

"Young Bob" literally is saturated today with "Old Bob-ism."

He is an EDUCATED senator. He was being trained for a senatorship while serving as secretary to "Old Bob."

He has FINISH. I do not say he is the ablest senator on Capitol Hill, but he KNOWS HOW.

I never heard Senator La Follette of today referred to as Robert M. La Follette, jr. He always is mentioned as "Young Bob."

I take this to be a great deal of a compliment to the old man.

Writer Tells About Elsie Robinson

Editor's Note—So many readers have asked about Elsie Robinson—who she is—where she writes from, etc., that the following glimpse of Elsie and her home life will be of more than ordinary interest to News-Journal readers. Letters to Elsie Robinson should be sent in care of King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th street, New York City.

By HOWARD BEAUFAIT

SONORA, Cal.—I would like to introduce you to Elsie Robinson, one of the most interesting women in the world. She is more than a newspaper columnist. She is a sincere humanitarian. To meet and know, she is as refreshing as a mountain stream. She is a symbol of the rugged west, and her biographer is going to have a tough time capturing her generous and poignant spirit.

From here on, I will refer to her as Elsie. No one who has met her thinks of calling her anything else. She has a 400-acre ranch high in the Sierras above Sonora. There she works and worries about the world.

I was welcomed at the ranch with true Western hospitality. Rarely have I felt more at home. Never has an assignment been more pleasant and invigorating.

* * *

WHEN you read Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" column, you feel you have met a mature mind. You will know her mind and heart, but the woman herself, and her amazing background may escape you. That's why I'm here. Elsie is tall, broad-shouldered and 55. She has the energy of two men. Her blue eyes are deep set in her head and they are as changing as the western sky. They sparkle clear with humor, but they quickly cloud over with the shadows cast by the dilemmas of humanity.

She lives every minute of the day. She is not blase. A pine tree leaning against the evening sky will send her into ecstasy. A human problem will send her skidding to despair. How Elsie finds time to get everything done, I don't know. In a small cabin on the ranch she sits at her typewriter from dawn till long after everyone else is in bed. Her reader mail pours in at the rate of 2,000 letters per day.

Three secretaries try to weed out some of the fan letters to protect their boss from some of the terrific pressure. But she insists on reading it all. She writes on an average of 7,000 words per day. Aside from her column and a Sunday page she bats out magazine articles and wades through a mass of business correspondence.

In her spare time she has written a book, the story of her life, and is engaged in writing another which will be titled "So You Want to Write."

Rarely does she leave her typewriters for meals. Herbert, her Japanese cook, brings her a dish of fruit which she nibbles. Writing is her work and her recreation. And she has the ability to project herself into the lives of 20 million readers scattered throughout America.

* * *

ELSIE ROBINSON greeted me as I would a weary traveler. A person who had been battered down by the speed and the pressure of the city. She insisted that I soak up the mountain air and bask in the solitude of the big Sierra trees before I got down to any interviews. She refused to trouble me with words until I was thoroughly relaxed.

Elsie Robinson was born to poor, hard-bitten pioneer parents in the little California frontier town of Benicia. She grew up in the turbulent days when the west was mad and murderous with the thought of gold. She has never known anything but hard work.

Between the ages of thirty-two and thirty-five she worked as a common laborer in a California gold mine, not by choice, but because she had to earn a living. Her feet were blistered from the heavy mine shoes and her hands calloused and bleeding from swinging a pick or pushing a wheelbarrow. But always she wrote. She came to the newspaper business directly from the mine twenty years ago. Her sharp perception of life and human problems were set down in simple forceful style—and she was on her way to fame.

* * *

THE world began to "Tell It To Elsie," the title of her earlier column.

Elsie has survived the warping circumstances of her life, and now she stands in the sun. She has found her way out in that hope which she calls "God."

Perhaps this background will give you an idea of what she is like today. Her character has been molded by the slow torturous processes of life. Her face and her eyes tell the story. It is a pleasant story.

I found no bitterness in Elsie. She is gravely concerned about the human race. Young people in particular. Wearily she told me that nothing seems to work today. Marriage doesn't work. Work doesn't work. People are bewildered and helpless—going nowhere.

One of the tragedies in her life was the loss of her son. I have read many of her columns in which she makes reference to this boy, who was snatched from her in his youth and whose going deprived her of all that seemed to make life worthwhile. Her word pictures of those vacant hours etch themselves into the mind of the reader and although Elsie had lost her son she had not lost the spirit to carry on for his sake.

Perhaps, if he had lived she might not have been able to write so feelingly of life, there would have been nothing to inspire her to roam the world for the joys and tragedies in other lives.

No one can read her column without appreciating that Elsie Robinson has scraped the veneer from life. Reading her is almost like putting the X-ray on our own hearts and minds.

She considers no task too menial and proved this when she went into the mines. Later she became owner of the mines. She knows the mental and physical struggle. She has fought her way every inch of the road.

* * *

ELSIE'S typewriter was still chattering away as I left, racing against time. I carried away from her ranch a disturbing picture. A wise woman standing on top of the world but one who knows that she is at the bottom looking up.

I am glad to have met Elsie Robinson. I seem to have grown a little.

ELSIE ROBINSON

Listen, World!

Youth Should Be Curious.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE elderly Sourpusses who view Youth with alarm and who everlastingly complain of its restlessness, recklessness and lusty defiance of tradition—

Where do they think the human race would be today if Youth had not displayed these qualities? What progress could we possibly have made if each new generation had not asked questions, made experiments, gone on defiant adventures?

There is no sadder sight than a young person who has "settled down" prematurely, either through choice or necessity. Invariably he is regarded as a Shining Example by his elders, whereas he should actually be confined in a pest house or turned loose into a savage jungle where he must Take a Chance or Die.

THE DEATH RATTLE BEGINS WHEN THE QUESTIONS STOP.

Carlton Beals knew this when, he vowed, in his 'teens, that he'd see the wide world before he acquired "varicose veins and a bank account." So came years of travel in Mexico, Italy, Spain—not hobo travel or tourist travel . . . but the wanderlust that comes because there's a tom-tom in your veins. Out he went, hungry, ragged and often side-stepping death by a breath, to stuff his young spirit with the grist and the glory of life. Now he has set those years down in his latest, great book—"GLASS HOUSES" (Lippincott, Pub.)

There's the very soul of seeking Youth in those pages . . . penniless, laughing, sunburnt Youth, with a girl on its knee, and a song on its lips, and a question crying, crying, like a wild bird in its heart. Which was as it should be, he thought.

"Youth should be spent in eager curiosity. Perhaps it need not have a formulated purpose, perhaps it is all the better for having such purpose. Youth should be tossed to life without too many reservations."

"Youth . . . tossed to life!" Gorgeous phrase—and true! For is not Youth born struggling, protesting . . . reaching tiny, exploring hands toward vast horizons? And it is surely a tragic thing when the pressure of modern life . . . or the nagging of stupid elders . . . turns a young Gypsy into a Go-getter before he has followed at least one rainbow to its pot of gold.

Life so deprived becomes sterile or septic. Plodding Percy with his meek-mousey manners and Two-gun Gus, with his marihuana cigaret, are symptoms and victims of the same sick system which would regiment Youth in Safety Zones and deny it those vitalizing doubts, risks and adventures which are its birthright . . . and humanity's hope.

Which does not imply that all youngsters can or should jump their jobs and leap into the nearest box car. But it does mean that, spiritually, they should have their chance at the mystery of life and not be too quickly condemned if they refuse to be content with the old formulas and patterns.

Murder and theft are mild offenses beside the crime of denying another human his right to Free Thought. Yet parents commit this crime daily—and pin wreaths on themselves for so doing!

"YOUTH SHOULD BE CURIOUS" . . . You may not have a ticket to Bali, kid, but you can find an Out for yourself quite as effectively by taking a course in automobile designing, engineering, chemistry, block printing, weaving. I knew a frantic girl, cooped in a sweat-shop basement, who fought off madness with a set of Fabre's fascinating natural history books. Her tubercular body crouched in a stinking gloom, but her spirit went whistling down green trails, glimmering with star dust, jeweled with beetle wings.

It isn't the thing that you do, or the place you go, that counts. What does count is that you manage to keep yourself hot and eager and gay—and wondering why and where!

P. S.: READ THAT BOOK . . . IT'S GREAT!

ALL of US

Your North Star.

I GO OUT into the night and raise my eyes to the heavens and look, in the great tangle of the constellations, for the Big Dipper . . . Finding it at last, I follow the stars to the two that point far out to the North Star.

Without the aid of those two pointers, I never would find it. It is so dim, so undistinguished. And yet, faint though it is, this star means most to men. By this star men have traveled far . . . set sail for undiscovered lands, legendary ports. By this star they have turned their rudders, retraced their long courses, made their way home again, and come at last to the arms of their beloved ones. It is a lovely star, of dear significance for all who wander from the uncharted ways of man.

And I like to believe there is in man's own breast some star as steady as this North Star in the heavens . . . some guide as sure, some mark that brings him, too, home to security and the dear familiarities of life.

For we are not always sure of our little courses. We miss our way in carelessness . . . in ignorance . . . in arrogance and perversity . . . because we are too young . . . because we lack experience . . . because our dreams are beyond our capacities . . . For many a reason we lose our way and think for a little while that we are forever lost.

I know there are men and women who never find their way home out of bewilderment and despair . . . and live all the rest of their lives in sadness, bitterness, loneliness. For them there is no fixed point anywhere in their natures. They have surrendered all certainty and are pathetically lost.

But there are others—and I have seen them—who never lose touch with the homely comfortable security that blesses and lifts humanity above the little deaths. Those little deaths are small cynicisms, nagging cares, trivial distrusts, meager selfishness, petty cruelties that seem so unimportant but are so strong to sweep us from the course we have set for ourselves.

But sometimes a man may lift his eyes and see beyond the thousand little distractions of his daily life. He may remember that after he is more than he seems and his life has more meaning than these little details suggest. He is alive in other ways, he has a goal he does not avow, he has a home that is not bounded by four walls or numbered on some mean little street in a city. And within his own breast he has a guiding star that will never lead him astray.

ONLY 1 IN 11 ON PROBATION FAIL TO MAKE GOOD

Court Records for 18 Months Show Few First Offenders Face Judge Again.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Less than 10 per cent of the offenders who have been placed on probation in Richland county common pleas court in the past 18 months have failed to make good on the chance given them by Judge C. H. Huston, court records showed today.

More than 100 men and women, most of them first offenders, have been given probation by Judge Huston after pleading guilty to charges against them during the last year and a half, but only nine have violated their probation.

The probation violators, one of whom were involved in a major crime, were sentenced after they repeated the offense or failed to comply with the requirements of their probation.

Probationers must refrain from gambling and the use of intoxicating liquor and report once a month to Harry Crouse, county probation officer. If they are unable to report in person, they are permitted to submit a written report of their conduct for the month, but it must be signed by a reputable sponsor.

Range From 2 to 5 Years.

Probation periods usually are for two, three or five years, depending upon the seriousness of the offense and the record of the offender.

The winner of probation more often is a young person who is not a criminal at heart but who gets into bad company and is led astray, Judge Huston said.

"In such cases, giving the youth a chance to make good is far better than sending him to a penal institution to be kept by the taxpayers," the judge says. "If he does make good, everyone profits by it."

The defendant who pleads innocent after being indicted by the grand jury and then is convicted at a trial, stands small chance of escaping a sentence under Judge Huston's plan.

Pleading Guilty 'Helps.'

"If a defendant is guilty and pleads guilty, saving the county the cost of a trial, he has taken the first step toward winning a chance to make good," the judge said.

"But this court is turning away from granting probation to persons who drive while intoxicated or otherwise threaten the lives of others," he added.

The defendant who comes before Judge Huston on a charge of cutting or shooting with intent to wound seldom is shown leniency.

"Persons who will use guns or knives when they are angry or intoxicated are dangerous to society, and to free them may mean a worse offense the next time," he said.

Probationers who violated their probation in the past 18 months had pleaded guilty to charges of embezzlement, bigamy, non-support, automobile theft and burglary. In each violation the defendant was sentenced.

STILL LAGGING

Real Estate Tax Receipts to Date Total $135,000.

Despite a pick-up in real estate tax receipts in the past week, County Treasurer John E. Kolb today had collected only $135,198 of the more than $600,000 due for the second half of the year.

With the tax books scheduled to close Aug. 20, receipts must show a marked increase in the next three weeks, or a high percentage of real estate and special assessment levies will be carried over as delinquent, the treasurer indicated.

Tuesday's receipts dropped off to $3,900, one of the lowest day's collections since the collection period opened July 5. Kolb, however, predicted the payments of property taxes by public utilities and large industrial firms in the county would boost receipts to around $600,000 by the end of the collection period.

BULL INFURIATED BY OWN IMAGE

Sees Reflection In New Car, Smashes Door With Charge.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—The next time Charles Brawner buys a new car he will be more careful where he parks it at his dairy farm. Recently he drove a shiny new car into the pasture and a huge bull wandered toward it, eyed it with curiosity.

Suddenly the bull saw its image in the polished surface of the car door. He charged and the door crumpled. Before Brawner could move the machine there were few smooth surfaces left large enough to reflect images.

LOVE IN DANGER

By KATHRYN BEMIS

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER XV

Then unaccountably Ray's anger flared. She had endured enough of Frank's evasions—she had had enough of him. She would show him that she didn't care.

"Come to think of it—I am going away," she said swiftly. "I'm being married to Hal—tonight on his yacht—we're going on a long cruise." Her shrill little laugh sounded hollow in the mouthpiece.

"Oh, Ray—" came from him low.

"What—what did you say?" she asked lightly. But he had hung up.

Ray was all of a fever now. She rang for Mimi. She ordered her to pack clothes for a month's yachting trip. She rushed back downstairs and into the library where Hal and her aunt were leisurely smoking. She blazed out at them, "I've—I've decided to marry you, Hal. Where—whenever you like."

Her voice was high-pitched, hysterical.

Hal leaped up, crying, "You darling!" and came to her with outstretched arms, but she managed to elude him.

Lucy Yates tossed her cigaret into the fireplace, hurried over to Ray, embraced her affectionately. She kissed her hot cheek, said, "I'm glad you've made up your mind, dear. I'm very happy over acquiring Hal for a nephew."

Ray's dry throat contracted. Her wide blue eyes stared vacantly at Hal. She asked, "When can we go aboard the yacht—and how about the crowd?"

"To tell the truth, everything has been arranged. The crowd will be at the pier at 10 o'clock tonight. You can have your luggage sent down at any time today. I'll go now and arrange for a clergyman to meet us on board. After the ceremony, we'll shove off. Whoop-ee!"

He grabbed Ray and kissed her gayly on the forehead.

"All right," she promised as he released her, "I'll be ready."

When he had gone, Ray laid her head on her aunt's shoulder and burst into sobs.

"I know exactly how you feel, child," Lucy Yates said, stroking the fine blond hair of her niece, "I shed tears of joy, too, when I promised to marry Judson."

Ray abruptly tore herself from her aunt's arms and ran back upstairs. Even Aunt Lucy, as dear as she was, couldn't understand everything.

In her own suite again, Ray began telling Mimi what to put into the steamer trunks. It took a long time to sort out clothes suitable for an immediate trousseau, yet Ray did not regret having no specially prepared wardrobe. No—if she took time to plan and order one, perhaps she wouldn't have the courage to marry Hal—and she must marry him and get it over with.

When Ray and her aunt reached the pier that night and were about to step into the launch that would take them out to the beautiful brass-trimmed yacht gleaming under the search-lights, it was Frank Armstrong and not Hal who greeted them.

Frank said crisply, "There's no time for explanations, Ray. You and Mrs. Yates are to come with me. Hal's father doesn't want the wedding to take place—he'd like to see you at his office at once. Come—I have my car."

"The very—idea!" ejaculated Ray. "You think you can prevent my marriage to Hal by this high-handed—"

"Ray—we'll see Mr. Williams," said Mrs. Yates. No niece of hers would be allowed to marry a man's son against that man's wishes!

"It's only a trick!" cried Ray indignantly. "Auntie—I—"

"Hurry," said Frank, grasping Ray's arm, and she found herself, for no sane reason, again obeying him.

* * *

Upon arriving at Mr. Williams' office, Ray was astonished to see Roper there, also. They all seated themselves after terse greetings.

Then Roper said, "There's some explaining to do, ladies. Perhaps I can talk better than Mr. Williams just now."

Ray, thinking about Mr. Williams not wanting her to marry his son, glared at him now in open defiance. But she was inclined to feel sorry for him. The bulky little man looked beaten.

Roper's voice droned on. "It seems that the waiter named Tune from the Lily Bell weakened when they used the lie detector on him. He confessed to murdering Anna Cook—said he took nothing but the pearls from her safe so that the murder would be laid on the one who's been stealing all the pearls lately. He said he was hired to go on the Lily Bell as a waiter by a man who knew he'd murdered Anna Cook. This man offered to pay him for setting fire to the boat and stealing the necklace from Armstrong's coat pocket. Tune swam to shore after the lifeboat got away and tried to get the pearls from Armstrong, but all he got was a hard fight and a beating."

"Then Tune didn't—he didn't steal all the other pearl necklaces—Aunt Lucy's and all the rest?" Ray asked, breathlessly.

"Well—no," came reluctantly from Roper.

Ray's heart sank, she flashed a glance at Frank, but he was busy winding his wrist watch and did not look up.

"I'll go on from here," came hoarsely from Gorden Williams. "You see—some one very dear to me has, for some time, been afflicted with kleptomania. He wanted to take only pearls and has been very clever about it. I—I found half a dozen pearl necklaces hidden in Hal's wall-safe today—he forgot to lock it in his haste to get to the yacht."

"Hal? You mean Hal—took all those necklaces?" came in a strangled whisper from Ray.

"Yes—and they will all be returned. Here is your necklace, Mrs Yates. There was a tag attached to every one with the owner's name written on it." Mr. Roper came over and laid a small open box in Mrs. Yates's hands.

"Thank heaven—here they are!" she cried, taking the necklace in her shaking fingers.

Ray glanced questioningly at Frank. He smiled and said to her, "The necklace Roger Paine and I had the night of the Clifton dance was a paste imitation of your aunt's necklace Roger was helping me. After shutting off the electricity, I did succeed in getting my necklace stolen—but didn't catch the thief. Although Roger and I watched carefully and suspected Hal—we couldn't prove anything."

"Then Mr. Roper was trying to find the pearl thief all along?" Ray was beginning to see the light.

"Yes," Frank continued. "He didn't want you to know. You might have been a little self-conscious in your work for him."

He turned to Ray's aunt. "You see, Mrs. Yates—Ray has been employed by Mr. Roper for a few weeks."

"What? Ray you—" Mrs. Yates was speechless.

"Yes, Auntie. I've been a kind of detective," acknowledged Ray slowly, "and a—kind of fool."

Frank came to sit in the chair behind her, leaned down to whisper in her ear, "A dear little fool"

* * *

A suffocating sense of his nearness tenderly encompassed her. She had to force herself to listen to what Roper was saying.

"This is the first time in my career that I have had to acknowledge defeat," he remarked. "Armstrong insisted it was Hal Williams all along but I couldn't agree. I knew the boy had plenty of spending money, didn't have use for loot. But now Armstrong gets a promotion and big bonus for solving the case. He made Tune confess, got Mr. Williams to examine his son's safe—and located all the pearls."

Gorden Williams rose to his feet with a heavy sigh. He had suddenly slumped into old age. His ashen, lined cheeks sagged and his chunky shoulders drooped pathetically. He said, "Thank you, Mr. Roper. As soon as I can arrange it, Hal and I will move out of town. I know you'll get the pearls back to their owners. They're all friends of ours and probably won't want to prosecute Hal—because he's not responsible. I'd give all the money I've got if he didn't have that queer kink in his brain."

He started to leave but Lucy Yates rushed up to him, and took him by the arm, saying, "Certainly, no one will blame Hal—he's to be pitied. You were a brave man to tell us about him. Let me take you home in my car, Mr. Williams."

They left the room and Roper, after a quick glance at Ray and Frank, hastily followed them.

Ray rose, said tremulously, "I—I must go, too."

But Frank drew her down beside him on a low lounge. He said earnestly, "Darling, I'd like to explain a few things. After graduating from college last June, I left my parents' home in New York. Father has almost too much money—I wanted to make good, not as his son, but on my own. I came to Mumford and saw your pictures in the papers—fell in love with you. From then on, I had a second objective—to make you love me for myself alone."

A lambent flame was in her big eyes. She said softly, "Now both objectives are won. I—I love you."

She cradled her head on his shoulder, her fragrant hair brushed his cheek. His vibrant lips resting on hers stilled a deep longing in her, filled her with a dear completeness she had never known before.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities ... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic

Put plate or bridge in ½ glass of water. Add a little Polident powder. Leave in 10 to 15 minutes—rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

OLD ALMANAC PREDICTS 1939 WORLD UPSET

Prophecies Include Honor for Roosevelt and Decline of Mussolini.

LONDON — Foulsham's Original Old Moore's Almanac, which claims to be published under an original copyright dating back to 1697, prophesies world events of sweeping importance for next year.

The decline of Benito Mussolini's dictatorship is predicted for November, 1939, the lunation of which "is adverse for Mussolini, whose sway will not be rapidly declining through discontent fostered by economic stress, partly through the reigning dynasty now exercising much more control than hitherto in Italian affairs."

Of July, the Almanac says "Italy and German appear to be both faced with financial and economic troubles of so stubborn a nature as to be incapable of relief merely by resort to the printing press and these difficulties are likely to render the position of Mussolini somewhat precarious."

Trouble For Stalin Seen.

Josef Stalin's danger month is May, when "political affairs in Russia, likewise that country's relations with other powers, appear to be involved and matters may be further complicated by the eclipse of Stalin." An obvious threat of hostilities between Russia and Japan is predicted.

In December "there is some danger of a clash between the United States and Japan, who may again be guilty of aggression in China—in which case our kinsman's patience may be strained to breaking-point. Alternately or in addition, Russia may be involved, for Mars sets at Moscow."

But as early as January, the Almanac says that lunar position at Tokyo suggests a break with America. Boom conditions are prophesied for America at the end of June, with bountiful crops and good trade in Italy in July.

President Roosevelt is promised "an immense and well deserved personal triumph" in September through playing a leading part in preserving international peace. This may include the Almanac says, "the final settlement of at least one war abroad."

In May the British government "will be worried by a scandal affecting a member, and distressed and embarrassed by retirement of two of its greatest figures."

The Almanac says further:

"In the event of its difficulties precipitating a general election, the government of the day would probably be returned to power, but possibly with a reduced majority."

In June the views of the British government "may be at variance with those of the masses and an election is possible in this or the preceding month. All this time wars and rumors of war will loom large on the political horizon, but the majority of people will favor a refusal to take sides and be for keeping out of war at all costs, provided only neither our national honor nor our vital interests are at stake."

Pretty Girls Make Swell Drum Majors --If They've Studied Enough in School

Mildred Douglas: Champ.

Major Booth: Teacher.

(By The AP Feature Service)

CHICAGO—Let no lassie who wants to be a drum major think that all she needs is to smile prettily and to kick high.

There's a big demand for girl drum majors — it's almost a craze—but anyone who wants to get in on it has to work hard. That's what they do at a school run by Major William Booth here.

Booth, ex-marine and claimant of the world's baton twirling championship, has been baton-twirling for 45 years. He finds girls are just as good at baton-twirling as boys. Attaining perfection, he says, depends on an individual's agility—and plenty of practice.

It's easier when they start young, he says; his last batch of pupils included an 11-year-old girl and a 10-year-old lad. Mildred Douglas, 19, of Evanston, Ill., who is the national girl baton twirling champion, took tips from him. She challenges anyone and says she is going after the men's title, too.

Booth believes in having his pupils dress the part, and they go through their drills in fancy drum major costumes. It improves their spirit, he says.

Both is called "Major" because he explains, that is the honorary title of a marine band leader.

URGES CITY TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Mayor to Call on Council to Purchase Air Compressor Instead of Renting One.

City council at its meeting Aug. 2 will be asked to approve the purchase of a mobile air compressor for use by the street and water departments.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today he would lay a proposition before council whereby the city could purchase a $2,200 compressor for approximately $1,500.

The mayor explained however that in drafting the $75,000 Woodland water improvement, that a sum of $15 per day had been set aside for the rental of a compressor which is needed to cut the paving and tamp the backfill in the trenches.

The $15 daily rental would amount to nearly the purchase price of the machine before the work was completed and the city would still not have a machine," Hunter said.

The mayor will ask council to divert the funds set aside for rental for the purchase of the machine.

Construct Moats To Waylay Hoards Of Grasshoppers

FOUNTAIN, Colo. —(AP)— The residents of this town and of nearby irrigated districts resorted successfully to ancient moat defenses recently to repel a threatened invasion of grasshoppers.

Hoppers, too young to fly, were moving toward the town and the rich farm lands. The problem was to exterminate them before they grew wings and could fly.

Water was turned into an old ditch that circled the city on the north, east and south sides. Poisoned bran was scattered on he side of the ditch from which the 'hoppers were approaching.

Healthy grasshoppers can swim, but the poison made them ill. When they tried to cross the water they were washed downstream into a nearby reservoir.

There they drowned and nearby residents reported the millions of bodies created such a stench it was "almost unbearable."

LEARN OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word has been received by Bucyrus relatives of the death in Springfield of Merritt Stinchcomb, 39, Monday night.

Mr. Stinchcomb, a former Bucyrus resident, is survived by his widow, formerly Sarah Wert, and three daughters.

The body is expected to be brought to Bucyrus for burial.

Tricky Winds Force Canadians to Buy California Bees

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — (AP) — California honey bees are transported to Canada and then executed after doing a summer's work of honey production.

The variable winter climate in southern parts of the Canadian provinces is said to be responsible for the strange traffic.

Chinook winds sweep the provinces and lead the dormant bees to believe spring has come and flowers are about to bloom. The bees bestir themselves and attempt to fly out of the hives, only to discover winter has returned. After this occurs several times the bees are exhausted and are worthless for the summer.

So each spring colonies of bees are imported from California. After they produce honey all summer they are killed in the late fall. The queen is saved and she is sent by mail to California to live throughout the winter and to become the nucleus for a new colony.

Father Waits Fate In 'Insurance Slaying' of Son, 12

JURORS ORDER DEATH OR LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Roadhouse Operator Says Two Waitresses Drew Straws to Decide Who Would Kill.

(By United Press)

WAYCROSS, Ga. — Harvey Nelson, 35-year-old roadhouse proprietor, will be sentenced to death or life imprisonment today for slaying his 12-year-old son in a plot to collect $900 double indemnity on a policy covering the boy's life.

A jury of merchants, farmers and railroad men deliberated 45 minutes, found Nelson guilty of first degree murder, and did not recommend mercy.

Teh state demanded the death penalty. Judge M. D. Dickerson said he would pronounce sentence today.

Repeats Confession.

Nelson, on the stand, repeated his original confession of the insurance plot which he had retracted in part at hearing preceding his trial.

His story was that he, Verna Mae Fowler and Mary Kent, waitresses at his establishment, conspired to kill the boy, J. C. Nelson, and obtain $300 each on the double indemnity policy.

These two women drew straws to see which should kill the boy, Nelson testified, Miss Fowler drew the fatal straw. He asserted that she shot the lad to death on the back porch of the roadhouse last May 26.

Miss Fowler on the stand denied the shooting, declaring she saw Nelson shoot his son through the chest.

Denies His Charges.

Mary Kent, released when Nelson refused to testify against her at a commitment hearing, was rearrested during the trial and called to the stand. She denied Nelson's story of the straw-drawing and charged he alone was responsible for J. C.'s death.

The two women worked and lived at Nelson's combination home and roadhouse on the outskirts of this south Georgia tobacco town.

Nelson also faces trial on charges of beating to death his wife. He was convicted of slaying her and sentenced to 20 years in prison but the Georgia supreme court granted him a new trial.

Farm Family of 18 Wins Contest as 'County's Biggest'

Richland county's "biggest farm family," according to the contest just concluded by the Madison theater, is so big that all of the members can't be assembled at one time. There are 18 persons in it, 16 children and the parents.

The family of William Karbula, R. D. 2, Lexington, nosed out the family of R. O. Smith, R. D. 3, Shelby, last night just before the contest closed, and as a result the Karbulas will have their "happy interlude" tonight as guests of the Madison theater and the Parkway restaurant.

While the Smiths have 11 children, the Karbulas have 16. Of the entire family 12 children live in Richland county, one is in a CCC camp in Idaho and three work in other cities. The children who are at home and the parents will attend the show, "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

The winning group will be provided with transportation tonight to and from their home by the Mohican Chevrolet agency; they will be guests of the Parkway restaurant for dinner; the mother will receive flowers from Carek's and a box of candy from Shumaker's drug store for the family. Isaly's Park avenue store will "treat" them after the show.

John Mahon, 123 Blymyer avenue, stepped on No. 2 tee at Possum Run golf course yesterday, took a No. 2 iron from his bag—and shot a hole-in-one. Then he proceeded around the course, thinking practically nothing of it. Not until he got to the clubhouse, and was overwhelmed by the excitement of attendants when he told them he'd gotten "one of those holes-in-one," did he realize what a rarity an "ace" really is. He's only been playing golf for three weeks. It was the year's third at Possum Run and the sixth of the season on a Mansfield course. Mahon admitted that his score, despite his ace, was "in the 60's.".

What is believed to be the largest telegram ever delivered in Mansfield through regular sources is displayed in the Crafton Shoe store window. It came by Western Union and contains a business promotion message. The telegram is 32 by 36 inches and the envelope in which it was delivered was 12 by 18 inches. It even had a "window" on the front of the envelope, such as the regular messages have.

A hollyhock which grows nine feet in height is rather tall for this type of flower, Mrs. C. A. Ernst of Galion admitted after reading about the titular claims of a Ohio flower fancier, but she figured she had one just as big in her own back-yard. Just to assure herself, she measured the plant and found it was 10 feet, 10 inches in height. And still growing, she says.

UNCOVERS RARE BEETLE COLONY

Researcher Finds Black Sarklings On Island Driftwood.

KINGSVILLE, Tex.—(AP)—In 14 years of search for the black sarkling beetle, Prof. Joe C. Brown of Texas A. and I. college never had found more than five in any one colony until a recent trip.

Then he discovered 19 — more than he had obtained in previous finds combined—under driftwood on an island in Corpus Christi bay.

The life history of the beetle has not been defined and is one of entomology's major question marks. in 1919 the U. S. bureau of entomology offered a prize for complete information on the bug but the reward has never been claimed.

WHEAT 'BEST IN 20 YEARS'

New Crop Continues to Pour Into Richland Elevators; Prices Half of 1937.

Wheat described as the "best quality in 20 years" continued to pour into Mansfield and Richland county grain elevators today as farmers neared the end of their threshing season.

Prices, however, remained at about half of last year's. Quotations held at 62 cents per bushel for No. 1 wheat and 61 cents for No. 2 grain, millers said.

Grain dealers predicted that most of the threshing from the shock will be completed in the county this week unless rain interferes. A considerable quantity of wheat, however, was stored in barns and will be threshed late in the summer when prices may be better, millers said.

Average yield in the county is from 20 to 22 bushels per acre while a few farmers have reported harvesting as much as 35 to 40 bushels, J. O. Hanley, of the Hanley Milling company, said.

The grain is testing 60 and 62 pounds, the best in the last 20 years, and the moisture content is negligible, the Lantz mill, Mansfield, reported.

Grain dealers attributed the low price to a huge holdover of last year's crop and heavy production this year in the western wheat states.

HITS LAW SCHOOL PROFESSORS IN 3RD BRANCH OF PROFESSION

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Before the American Bar association today was a suggestion from President Arthur T. Vanderbilt to consider the "problem" of the law school professor who talks "with his tongue in his cheek and his eye on page 1, column 1 of the daily newspaper."

The association's assembly, entering the third day of the 61st annual convention, was scheduled to receive a controversial report of a committee on administrative law, headed by Dean Emeritus Roscoe Pound of Harvard.

Jerome N. Frank, member of the securities and exchange commission, has charged the committee's report "defames" Commission Chairman William O. Douglas by asserting the Sec acted "in a biased manner."

Vanderbilt, of Newark, N. J., told the association's section on legal education that professors, as special advisers to governmental departments and co-operators in bar reforms, constitute "a third branch of the legal profession" with "a freedom greater than that accorded to either judge or advocate."

"That freedom obligates him above all others to dedicate his thought and utterances to the truth and the truth alone," Vanderbilt said.

"Must he not avoid the exhibitionism which has characterized too many of our so-called publicists? Must he not refrain from talking with his tongue in his cheek and his eye on page 1, column 1 of the daily newspaper?"

A resolution by Dean Edward T. Lee of John Marshall Law school, Chicago, for information on Justice Hugo L. Black's eligibility to serve on the supreme court is due to reach the convention floor tomorrow.

Lee refused to withdraw the resolution yesterday after Circuit Judge Richard D. Evans of Birmingham, Ala., protested against it. Marvin Woodall, past president of the Birmingham Bar association, termed the resolution "impertinent." Justice Black vacationing in Colorado, declined comment.

Miss McNerney made her home with her sister since illness forced her retirement six months ago. She was a graduate of Willard high school and Western Reserve university, and also attended the University of Edinburgh, in Scotland.

Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. McNerney of Willard; two sisters, Mrs. Floyd Bericker of Shelby and Mrs. Weber, and a brother, Eugene, of Willard. She was a member of the St. Francis Xavier Catholic church of Willard.

BOOSTER WAVE FOR ROOSEVELT STIRS ACTION

Senate Resolution Frowning on Extra Term Recalled as 'Campaign' Grows.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—A Republican-Democratic coalition effort in the senate to foreclose third term possibilities for President Roosevelt appeared likely to develop today from agitation over his 1940 plans.

Mr. Roosevelt has made no categorical statement whether he will be a 1940 candidate or retire. His public utterances, however, have intimated a desire to leave office.

But some of his associates and supporters have suggested directly or indirectly that circumstances might compel him to make the race in 1940 and that it might be just as well if he did. Partly for that reason the nation has broken out in a rash of third term comment. It need only continue at its present volume to assure both house and senate discussion of the matter when congress next meets.

Resolution Recalled.

When a third term storm blew around Calvin Coolidge in 1928 the senate expressed itself in a resolution not at all binding upon any nominating convention, but one which doubtless would have been taken into consideration if Mr. Coolidge's name had been put before the Republicans in Chicago that year. Adopted by a vote of 56 to 26, the resolution said:

"It is the sense of the senate that the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States in retiring from the presidential office after their second term has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our Republican system of government, and that any departure from this time honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R. Mich., recalled that resolution this week and invited attention to the fact that senators now rated as New Dealers were in the senate at the time and voted for it. These include Barkley, D., Ky., Ashurst, D., Ariz., McKellar, D., Tenn., Hayden, D., Ariz., Neely, D., W. Va., Pittman, D., Nev., Sheppard, D., Tex., Thomas, D., Okla., and Wagner, D., N. Y.

J. E. SCOTT DIES

Postal Clerk for 49 Years Stricken in California.

J. E. Scott, who was a Mansfield postoffice clerk for 49 years, died yesterday at his home in Santa Monica, Cal., after an illness of six months. He was 79.

Mr. Scott left Mansfield, where he had spent most of his life in July of last year. He had retired from postoffice duty in 1929.

WARNS OF RABIES

Rehder Urges Southern Richland to Watch for Stray Dogs.

With an outbreak of rabies in Knox county near the Richland county line, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, today warned residents in that section to be on the watch for stray dogs.

Dr. Rehder said that two persons had been bitten by a dog believed to be from the southern part of the county. He urged residents in that section to keep their dogs tied and to watch for any peculiar actions on the part of the animals as well as cats, horses and cows which also are susceptible to the disease.

FAIR ENOUGH!

In Italy, Athletes Win or Pay; Il Duce Offers No Sportsmanship Code

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The Italian football federation has fined the Ambrosiana club, holder of the national championship and defender of Fascist honor and prestige, for doing a guadalajara in a contest with the Yugoslavs.

The Ambrosianas lost, 9 to 0. As punishment they will have to pay 5,000 lire. They also have been forbidden to play outside Italy, where foreigners might see them and receive an unconvincing impression of Fascist invincibility, until Sept. 30. By that time, if they have improved sufficiently the association will consider the advisability of taking another chance with the Ambrosianas.

* * *

The fining of amateur athletes for failure on the field will seem grotesque to Americans, who have often accused themselves of overemphasis on sports but have never regarded an athletic defeat as a national calamity or a victory as a triumph for the state.

The Fascists and Nazis take a more serious view, however. The Fascist football clubs are part of the regime, and players who go abroad to represent Italy must come back with their shields or on them. They bear a heavier responsibility than the sportsmen of the free nations—a fact which may account in part for their extraordinary touchiness and their rather frequent violations of the generally accepted sporting code.

* * *

In this country a few years ago it was discovered that the college baseball players were operating under the rules drawn for the professional game and were technically liable to be fined for breaches of training or discipline.

There was no likelihood that any college coach or captain would attempt to invoke this rule, but, nevertheless, the colleges decided to eliminate it from their book on the ground that a player who sto od to gain no money by competing well should not stand to lose money by competing badly.

The Fascist prestige has been a distinct handicap to Italian sportsmanship on several notable occasions. Intended to act as wings on their heels—and Fascist sport has produced some notable heels—it has often served as a heavy burden when the invincible sportsmen felt they had to win or go home in disgrace. Under the Fascist code it is a disgrace to lose fairly and gallantly but an honor to win by any means.

* * *

The chivalry by which the decadent democracies set so much store was abandoned early in the reign of the Duce, when a gallant gesture brought unpleasant results. On that occasion an Austrian soccer team from Innsbruck beat a Fascist team from Milan, and the Milan club thought it would be pretty to send the Austrians a substantial token of friendship. The Milanese were long on chivalry but short on tact, however, for the token took the form of an enormous cast iron statue of Mussolini which was shipped F. O. B. Milan.

Not only was the Innsbruck team too poor to pay the freight, which was considerable, but a statue of Mussolini, who had forbidden the native Tyrolean yodel among the captive Austrians in Italy, was the very thing that all Austrians wanted least. For a combination of both reasons the Innsbruckers refused to accept the monument, which lay on a flat car in the freight yard, running up charges, and wired the Milanese to send up and get it. They said they considered the statue an insult, and the Milanese said this telegram was an insult to them.

* * *

This threw the Milanese into a great fury, and it looked as though the wretched Innsbruckers would have to load their cast iron Mussolini into guns and shoot him back a little at a time, until a nameless peacemaker hit upon a happy solution. The Innsbruckers ordered a foundry to cast a set of whiskers for the statue and changed the detested Mussolini into the beloved Gambrinus, the inventor of beer.

Later, however, the Viennese team had the ill manners to beat another group of Fascism's invincible defenders, and this time the press of Rome took up the outrage frankly as such. Chivalry was for the weak and decadent and not for those who live like lions, and the press of Mussolini's Rome openly threatened to block a loan to Austria which was then under consideration by the League of Nations.

* * *

In the last Olympic games in Berlin, Mussolini's invincibles ganged a referee during a game with the Americans and clapped their hands over his mouth so that he could not speak to expel an invincible from the game for fouling an American player. And nobody who was present will forget the cutlery shower which descended from the galleries in Madison Square Garden the night that an American amateur boxer badly defeated the Fascist flyweight champion, Edelweiss Drodriguez, who threw himself on the floor and screamed at the decision, but like a lion.

These episodes are trivial to the victors, who usually are able to win without undue exultation, but they are little Guadalajaras to the Duce, and the Ambrosiana club has been guilty of a grave betrayal of "a sacred trust."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

(Billie Burke, Hollywood's first lady of comedy, today stands-in for Robbin Coons, our movie columnist, who is on vacation.)

By BILLIE BURKE

HOLLYWOOD—If it's all the same to you, Robbin Coons, I've been wanting for a long time to do a "dear diary" on the trials of living up—or down, as the case may be—to a stage and screen character. You have no idea of how difficult it is to lead a sane, normal life when every stranger you meet, who's seen any of your pictures, expects you to give him a bland smile and say how only that morning you took the goldfish out of the bowl and washed them with soap and water.

When I go into a department store to buy a pair of gloves I'm like as not to bring forth a battery of the store's most solicitous salespeople. They give me the same protection they would a ten-year-old child venturing forth with her first five-dollar bill and have the most mournful look on their faces when I don't start trying the gloves on the clerk—just to be in character. I think they expect me to punch the time-clock on my way out.

* * *

GRACIE ALLEN may not know it, but I was a very sympathetic audience for her the other day. She placed a straightforward specific order for a pair of stockings, and the salesgirl broke into a peal of laughter. By the time Gracie received her package, the whole counter of clerks was almost in hysterics.

Then there was the time Boris Karloff's gardener turned around to find the actor giving him a very intent, studied look. The man fled the place, without stopping for clothes or baggage. Poor Karloff really was interested in analyzing the gardener's face He wanted to copy it in his make-up for his next picture.

Basil Rathbone tells me he had one of the most unhappily embarrassed moments of his life when an excited woman accosted him at the preview of "David Copperfield" screaming "I hate you.- I hate you." "I cringe sometimes," says Basil, "when I think that I'm one of the most despised of screen characters." I know just how Basil feels.

* * *

I never cease being amused at the shocked expressions on the faces of new acquaintances when they discover that I eat my breakfast, wind my clock, get to the set on time, have my shower on schedule, and lead the same kind of life as any other human. I'm a zany on the screen and stage and they think I should be that way in real life.

OLD ALMANAC PREDICTS 1939 WORLD UPSET

Prophecies Include Honor for Roosevelt and Decline of Mussolini.

LONDON — Foulsham's Original Old Moore's Almanac, which claims to be published under an original copyright dating back to 1697, prophesies world events of sweeping importance for next year.

The decline of Benito Mussolini's dictatorship is predicted for November, 1939, the lunation of which "is adverse for Mussolini, whose sway will not be rapidly declining through discontent fostered by economic stress, partly through the reigning dynasty now exercising much more control than hitherto in Italian affairs."

Of July, the Almanac says "Italy and German appear to be both faced with financial and economic troubles of so stubborn a nature as to be incapable of relief merely by resort to the printing press and these difficulties are likely to render the position of Mussolini somewhat precarious."

Trouble For Stalin Seen.

Josef Stalin's danger month is May, when "political affairs in Russia, likewise that country's relations with other powers, appear to be involved and matters may be further complicated by the eclipse of Stalin." An obvious threat of hostilities between Russia and Japan is predicted.

In December "there is some danger of a clash between the United States and Japan, who may again be guilty of aggression in China—in which case our kinsman's patience may be strained to breaking-point. Alternately or in addition, Russia may be involved, for Mars sets at Moscow."

But as early as January, the Almanac says that lunar position at Tokyo suggests a break with America. Boom conditions are prophesied for America at the end of June, with bountiful crops and good trade in Italy in July.

President Roosevelt is promised "an immense and well deserved personal triumph" in September through playing a leading part in preserving international peace. This may include the Almanac says, "the final settlement of at least one war abroad."

In May the British government "will be worried by a scandal affecting a member, and distressed and embarrassed by retirement of two of its greatest figures."

The Almanac says further:

"In the event of its difficulties precipitating a general election, the government of the day would probably be returned to power, but possibly with a reduced majority."

In June the views of the British government "may be at variance with those of the masses and an election is possible in this or the preceding month. All this time wars and rumors of war will loom large on the political horizon, but the majority of people will favor a refusal to take sides and be for keeping out of war at all costs, provided only neither our national honor nor our vital interests are at stake."

CATERPILLARS SLOW TRAINS

SUDBURY, Ont.—(U.P.)—Millions of caterpillars are again hampering movement of trains in this section, as they do every year about this time. The caterpillars staged their annual "migration" and are killed by the millions under the wheels of trains.

Pretty Girls Make Swell Drum Majors --If They've Studied Enough in School

Mildred Douglas: Champ.

Major Booth: Teacher.

(By The AP Feature Service)

CHICAGO—Let no lassie who wants to be a drum major think that all she needs is to smile prettily and to kick high.

There's a big demand for girl drum majors — it's almost a craze—but anyone who wants to get in on it has to work hard. That's what they do at a school run by Major William Booth here.

Booth, ex-marine and claimant of the world's baton twirling championship, has been baton-twirling for 45 years. He finds girls are just as good at baton-twirling as boys. Attaining perfection, he says, depends on an individual's agility—and plenty of practice.

It's easier when they start young, he says; his last batch of pupils included an 11-year-old girl and a 10-year-old lad. Mildred Douglas, 19, of Evanston, Ill., who is the national girl baton twirling champion, took tips from him. She challenges anyone and says she is going after the men's title, too.

Booth believes in having his pupils dress the part, and they go through their drills in fancy drum major costumes. It improves their spirit, he says.

Both is called "Major" because he explains, that is the honorary title of a marine band leader.

TOLD OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word has been received here of the death of Frank A. Stivers, 70, prominent Ripley, O., banker and husband of Zua Agnes Johnston, formerly of this city. Surviving with the widow is one son, Jack, also of Ripley.

A number of Bucyrus relatives survive.

WED IN SOUTH

BUCYRUS — The marriage in Erlanger, Ky., July 19, of Miss Bonnie White, daughter of Wallace White, 411 Charlotte street, and Jack Griffith, Marion, has been announced here.

The bride was graduated from Bucyrus high school in 1936.

Mr. Griffith is employed at the City Ice & Fuel company in Marion, where the home will be established.

URGES CITY TO BUY EQUIPMENT

Mayor to Call on Council to Purchase Air Compressor Instead of Renting One.

City council at its meeting Aug. 2 will be asked to approve the purchase of a mobile air compressor for use by the street and water departments.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said today he would lay a proposition before council whereby the city could purchase a $2,200 compressor for approximately $1,500.

The mayor explained however that in drafting the $75,000 Woodland water improvement, that a sum of $15 per day had been set aside for the rental of a compressor which is needed to cut the paving and tamp the backfill in the trenches.

The $15 daily rental would amount to nearly the purchase price of the machine before the work was completed and the city would still not have a machine," Hunter said.

The mayor will ask council to divert the funds set aside for rental for the purchase of the machine.

Construct Moats To Waylay Hoards Of Grasshoppers

FOUNTAIN, Colo. —(AP)— The residents of this town and of nearby irrigated districts resorted successfully to ancient moat defenses recently to repel a threatened invasion of grasshoppers.

Hoppers, too young to fly, were moving toward the town and the rich farm lands. The problem was to exterminate them before they grew wings and could fly.

Water was turned into an old ditch that circled the city on the north, east and south sides. Poisoned bran was scattered on he side of the ditch from which the 'hoppers were approaching.

Healthy grasshoppers can swim, but the poison made them ill. When they tried to cross the water they were washed downstream into a nearby reservoir.

There they drowned and nearby residents reported the millions of bodies created such a stench it was "almost unbearable."

LEARN OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word has been received by Bucyrus relatives of the death in Springfield of Merritt Stinchcomb, 39, Monday night.

Mr. Stinchcomb, a former Bucyrus resident, is survived by his widow, formerly Sarah Wert, and three daughters.

The body is expected to be brought to Bucyrus for burial.

Tricky Winds Force Canadians to Buy California Bees

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — (AP) — California honey bees are transported to Canada and then executed after doing a summer's work of honey production.

The variable winter climate in southern parts of the Canadian provinces is said to be responsible for the strange traffic.

Chinook winds sweep the provinces and lead the dormant bees to believe spring has come and flowers are about to bloom. The bees bestir themselves and attempt to fly out of the hives, only to discover winter has returned. After this occurs several times the bees are exhausted and are worthless for the summer.

So each spring colonies of bees are imported from California. After they produce honey all summer they are killed in the late fall. The queen is saved and she is sent by mail to California to live throughout the winter and to become the nucleus for a new colony.
